U.S. COTTON POOL

NO INTENTION OF SELLING THEIR PRESENT HOLDING

OSCAR JOHNSTON'S
DECLARATION

STRONG POSITION OF OUTSIDE
GROWTHS EXAGGERATED

Liverpool, To-day.
Mr. Oscar Johnston, manager of the United States cotton producers pool, according to a Reuters message yesterday, stated that the pool had no intention of selling their present holding, with amounted to 1,600,000 bales, under 12 cents per lb., but should the price regain that level they were prepared to sell as rapidly as the farmers turned in their certificates, but that sales would be distributed over a gradual period of time.

Mr. Johnston estimated that this year's crop would be 9,700,000 bales. Crop restriction would be continued for the remainder of the year, but he was not in a position to say whether the government loans to farmers would be continued for the new crop.

CHINESE LIQUID EGGS

Not Unfit For Human Consumption

NO ACTION CONTEMPLATED

London, To-day.
Sir E. Hilton Young, Minister of Health, in a written reply to further questions in the House of Commons, yesterday stated that a relatively small number of bacteria had been found in the samples of frozen Chinese eggs recently examined in the Ministry of Health laboratories.

There was no information, he said, to show that the eggs were unfit for human consumption; therefore he did not consider it necessary to take special action in the matter.—Reuter.

PRESSING THE COMMUNISTS IN KWEICHOW

MILITARY LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

REDS HIDING IN MOUNTAINS NEAR TSUNYI

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, To-day.
Chinese press reports state that General Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, flew yesterday from Chungking, provincial capital of Szechuan, to Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow province, in connection with the new offensive against the "hide-and-seek" Communists. The Kweichow provincial troops, who recently suffered heavy casualties both in dead and wounded, have proved incompetent to cope with the Communist menace, while the Nanking troops are concentrated mostly in Kweiyang. General Chiang Kai-shek will hold a conference with General Hsieh Yoh, Officer Commanding the Nanking divisions in Kweichow, on future military operations against the Reds.

ARMED FORCES MUST KEEP THEIR DISTANCE

C.E.R. AGREEMENT SOLVES ONE BIG PROBLEM

JAPAN'S NEGATIVE ATTITUDE ONLY CAUSE FOR ANXIETY

Moscow, To-day.

The agreement regarding the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway must be considered as the solution of one of the most complicated Far Eastern problems and the greatest positive event in the development of Soviet-Japanese relations, declared M. Litvinov in a press interview yesterday.

The sale of the C.E.R. would be one means of strengthening peace in the Far East, he said, and showed that with the presence of goodwill the most complicated questions between neighbours could be solved peacefully to mutual advantage.

M. Litvinov suggested that, with the lessening tension in the Far East, interested parties should start quietly discussing the problem of removing to a certain distance some parts of their armed forces, including air forces.

INCREASE TIN QUOTA SURPRISES

NO MARKET UPSET EXPECTED

AMERICAN INROADS ON UNDISCLOSED STOCKS

[From Our Own Correspondent]

London, To-day.
The International Tin Committee has increased the tin output quota to 45 per cent. for the three months April to June.

The increase of the tin quota has taken the market by surprise, as no change has been generally expected. The market, however, is not expected to be disorganised by the increase, though slightly lower levels are possible.

It is pointed out that there has been considerable disparity recently between American consumption and purchases, which means that America has been using undisclosed stocks, on which very heavy inroads must have been made.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S MESSAGE TO GREECE

Sympathy Expressed Concerning Revolt

London, To-day.

British Minister at Athens, the Hon. Mr. S. P. P. Waterlow, C. B. E., has been instructed to inform the Greek Government that His Majesty's Government has learned with great satisfaction that internal peace has been re-established in Greece.

They desire the Greek Government and nation to know that the difficulties of Greece have their sympathy, and that it is now their sympathetic hope that the domestic peace in Greece may prevail, her wounds be healed, and the progress toward prosperity be resumed.—British Wireless Service.

GOLDEN MILLER AGAIN WINS CHELTENHAM GOLD CUP

London, to-day.—The Cheltenham Gold Cup was won yesterday for the fourth successive time by Miss Dorothy Paget's famous steppeler, "Golden Miller," winner of last year's Grand National.—British Wireless Service.

It would be very important, he said, if the unfavourable impressions created by the negative attitude of the Japanese Government to the proposal for a non-aggression pact made by the Soviet Union. He hoped the C.E.R. agreement would lead to a peaceful solution of outstanding questions between the Soviet and Japan.—Reuter.

$589,637 SUIT AGAINST C.E.R.

Filed In Nantao District Court

Shanghai, To-day.

A suit involving $589,637 against the Chinese Eastern Railway has been filed in the Nantao District Court by the attorneys of Mr. Percy Chu, liquidator of the Russo-Asiatic Bank. An application has also been made for a restraining order to prevent the disposal of the Tungkadoo wharf at Pootung, the property of the C.E.R.—Reuter.

JAPAN LOOKS TO HEGEMONY OF ALL ASIA

CANTONESE OPINION IS UNCHANGED

PROFESSORS' TELEGRAM TO WANG CHING-WEI

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, To-day.
Professors of the Sun Yat-sen University have signed a joint circular telegram disapproving the pro-Japan policy of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, and concurrently Minister of Foreign Affairs. The telegram will be dispatched to-day.

The tone of the message is worded in mild language, but Mr. Wang's policy is criticised on academic grounds, but of course reflects the opinion of the South-west authorities.

Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen visited Hong Kong last Tuesday to see Mr. Hu Han-min in connection with Canton-Nanking relations and the Government's foreign policy towards Japan. Although Mr. Hsiao stated on Wednesday night that he went chiefly to enquire after Foreign observers agree that the majority of the Japanese people want peace, but that a military clique, comparable to that in pre-war Germany, is dominant in Japan now, just as for conquest and Asia-wide power, and that even the Emperor cannot restrain them. Here are the latest photographs of the two leaders in Japanese militarism: Gen. Hiro Minami, commander in Manchukuo, left, and Gen. Sanjuro Hayashi, Minister of War, right.

A mass suicide is reported from the Au Tau District in the New Territories, where a Chinese farmer is alleged to have seen five Chinese women commit suicide by jumping into a ravine and drowning. Li Shing, a farmer of No. 148 Nam Ping Wai Village, in a report to the Chun Wan Police Station, reports that at about 5 p.m. on Wednesday, he saw five Chinese women cutting grass on a hill-side. THE TEST MATCH

WEST INDIES SCORE 235 FOR 2 AGAINST ENGLAND

Headley And Sealey In Big Unbroken Stand

"BLACK BRADMAN'S" 132

Kington, To-day.
The West Indies are 235 for 2 and George Headley (132) and Ben Sealey (60) are together in an undefeated third wicket stand of 143 as the result of the first day's play in the fourth and final Test against England.

George Rolfe, the home skipper, beat Bob Wyatt with the toss and elected to bat in glorious weather, on a fast wicket and before a crowd of 5,500. An early setback was experienced when one of Kenneth Farnes' expresses got past Barrow's rock-like defence with only 6 runs on the board. The "wicket-keeper" had scored three singles.

SECOND WICKET STAND

Christiani and George Headley, the "Black Bradman," however, added 87 for the second wicket before the former was beaten by one of Payne's spinners for 27. Scores, as cabled by Reuter, were:—

WEST INDIES
I. Barrow, 6 Farnes	3
C. M. Christiani, 5 Payne	27
G. Headley, not out	132
J. E. D. Sealey, not out	60
Extras	18

Total (for 2 wickets) 235. Fall of wickets:—1 for 5; 2 for 52. England won the first Test, the West Indies the second, and the third was left drawn. This present encounter is the deciding one.

COUNTRY BEAUTIES

London.—There will be an influx of country visitors to London for next month's debutante dances, and the beauty parlours are ready with new ideas.

The latest treatment for country faces does not include the usual green powders and foundations for weather-beaten skins, but high colour is toned down by deep rachel powder that has no pink in it, over a rachel powder lotion.

Rather surprisingly, rouge is used on this type of skin, but the lotion effectually damps down the colour, and a little cream rouge is useful in disguising red veins when they are present. A delicate carnation tint is chosen and is blended in after the powder lotion has been applied.

The face is then dusted lightly with the rachel powder.

PARISIAN BEAUTY HINTS

WINTER MAKE-UP.

London.—New ideas in make-up from three of the leading beauty culture schools in Paris, where diplomas are obtained by would-be beauty specialists, have been brought back by a young English beauty expert to her salon in Queen's Gardens.

These include a double lipstick, especially intended for use during the winter months, in which the reverse is a pale banana-peach shade, and the obverse an orange red with no hint of the mauve in it. According to the complexion of the colour scheme of the dress, the time of day, client, and the temperature, the correct amount of each shade is applied to the lips.

Mixing the Powder

Rouge that is specially made up for each client at this beauty salon, has a small quantity of grease paint in its composition. This is in order not to dry the skin during the winter months, and it was after stage experience that this specialist evolved her formula.

There are no set shades; each client has her own exclusive version, which may be altered for her as the climate or her complexion change.

Another make-up secret from a French beauty school is the use of a powder two shades darker than the usual shade a client likes, just over the rouge, and this is blended in with the lighter powder over the rest of the face.

Rates and all particulars are shown in the schedules exhibited at the General Post Office and Kowloon Office. All letters etc., must be marked "By Air Mail" and handed in at the General Post Office. Lavishly dressed for the evening, Claudette Colbert, screen star, appears in a gown which in itself is a sheath of black massed bugle beads, with a long tunic silhouette, and a deep, daring bodice. The slender skirt beneath the tunic has a split in front and ends in a graceful train.

Hobble Skirts Again

The Ideal "Pencil" Silhouette

Some of our readers may remember a picture in "Punch" of the pre-war days, of the ultra-narrow skirt: two girls hurrying for a train; "Don't try to run, Mabel," cries one, "It's fatal, Hop as I do,"—and she hops with both feet at once.

It seems that those days are to come again, judging by the forecasts of this year's fashions. The "pencil" silhouette is to be the ideal, the skirt as narrow as possible and hanging perfectly straight. The effect will be enhanced by the "lumber-jack" coat, copied more or less from the style favoured by American lumber men gathered in at the waist and hanging away from the skirt like a bell.

In contrast with restrictions by day, freedom is permitted in the evening; skirts may have as much as six yards material round the hem. So we shall hobble by day and stride at night, and, for those who wish to be specially smart, classes will be held in the management of these voluminous frocks. Both styles sound a little tiresome.

TREATING SHOES WITH RESPECT

Hints On Cleaning

It is a simple matter to make boots and shoes waterproof. The more delicate leathers, like kid and patent leather, should be wiped over with a little vaseline, which preserves them besides rendering them waterproof. The soles should be soaked in linseed oil, left to dry, and the process repeated three times. Heavier golf and walking shoes can be rubbed all over with castor oil or melted mutton fat. Linseed oil is most effective, but should only be used on dark uppers, as it darkens the leather.

New shoes should never be worn in the street before being treated with some grease. Patent leather should be left coated with vaseline for some days before being worn, and brown leather should be well polished with furniture cream or white shoe cream. Stains can be removed with methylated spirits before polishing.

Suede shoes are best cleaned with a rubber brush, as this brings up the pile without removing the suede. Shiny portions should be rubbed with fine, worn emery paper, but this should be avoided as far as possible, as it is rather drastic treatment. Emery paper will not

Woman generally will be glad to know that the British Government has increased the pay of girls in its employment occupying temporary positions such as shorthand-typists and the like, but some will be surprised who are earning between $1,000 and $2,000 a year.

There are also two hundred women getting between $500 and $1,000 a year. These facts will be set out in a report, shortly to be placed before Parliament, in regard to the demand of women civil servants for equal pay with men.

This demand is based on the fact that 50 men in the Service are getting more than $2,000, 2,100 men are making more than $1,000, while 12,100 men receive from $500 to $1,000.

The fact that some women have already held these high posts successfully is urged as a reason why the opportunities should be extended to more of their sex. It is also pointed out that in the lowest branches of the Service women are now in a majority, occupying 7,100 posts against 4,000 held by men.

remove shine due to grease, however; these marks should be removed with petrol or benzene. When not in use, heavy tramping boots should be lavishly coated with some thick grease, like whale oil or dubbin, to keep them supple and comfortable.

BRIDGE NOTES

Counting On The Defence

by Ely Culbertson

Many Bridge players see almost everything except what is as plain as the nose on Jimmy Durante's face.

The reason is apparently a general feeling that certain phases of the game are too mysterious to be tackled by anyone except the experts. One such phase is card-reading. For home reason which I do not fully understand this form of cerebration is regarded by many as on a par with witchcraft and astrology. Actually it is often as simple as seeing Mr. Durante's aforementioned appendage.

Take for example South's count of East's cards in the deal below, through which he was able to defeat East's contract.

East, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

NORTH:

S—J 10 7

H—J 9 6 5

D—Q J 8 5

C—Q 7

WEST:

S—Q 9 5

H—7 4

D—8 4

C—A J 9 8 3 2

SOUTH:

S—K 8 4 3 2

D—3

C—6 5 4

EAST:

S—A 6

H—A K Q 2

D—K 10 9 7 2

C—K 10

The bidding:

East South West North

1 D Pass 2 C Pass

2 H Pass 3 C Pass

3 N T Pass Pass Pass

Against the rather optimistic East-and-West-contract-of-three notrump South naturally opened his fourth-best spade. A low card was played from Dummy, and North played the Ten, the Declarer winning the trick with the Ace.

East now played the King of clubs and then the Ten, and before deciding whether to finesse or play the Ace, he went into a deep study.

South took this opportunity to analyse the hand as well as he could. Of course he realised that if West played the Ace of clubs his partner's Queen would drop and the contract in that case probably could not be defeated.

Accordingly, he based his hope of defeating the contract on the assumption that East would go wrong on his decision in the club suit. South knew that the spade Queen was the Dummy's only possible card of re-entry. He first decided, therefore, that as soon as a low spade was led from the East hand, he would duck, hoping that his partner held the Jack, and the Declarer would guess wrong as to which card to play from Dummy.

Fortunately for South, he did not have to carry out his decision immediately. The declarer finally lost the club finesse to North, and the latter returned a heart.

At this moment South suddenly realised from the bidding that the East player probably had five diamonds and four hearts, and, since he had already played two clubs, could hold a maximum of two cards in the spade suit.

As a result, South realised that by going up with the King of spades he would effectually shut out the Dummy and probably thereby defeat the contract, without depending upon the hope that East, the declarer, would make a bad spade guess. In short, South knew that by going up with the spade King he had a sure thing, instead of an even or slightly less than even chance that East would make a wrong guess.

East, of course, won North's heart return in his own hand and now led a spade. Had South played low, East would have put up the Queen as his only hope. But when South played the King the Declarer now had to play the rest of the hand single-handed without using the Dummy at all, and as a result was set one trick.

South deserves credit, not for making a brilliant play, but for failing to make a bad one, and his course was made clear to him by the simple process of counting.

Although the judges first ruled her ineligible, owing to her youth, they finally decided 15-year-old Helen Davidson, of Quincy, Mass., so fitted the role that they selected her as queen of the city's winter carnival.

LINDBERGH'S SON THREATENED

"£1,000 Or We Kidnap Him"

Col. Lindbergh, the famous aviator, has been threatened by kidnapers in respect of his second son.

He is reported to have received this message:

"£1,000 or we kidnap little Jon to-night."

Jon is at the Morrow home at Englewood. During the night he is protected by a police dog so fierce that even State police do not approach unless accompanied by a member of the family.

A strong force of police is also stationed around the estate ready for any emergency.

SHORT SHOTS

The first Mickey Mouse in natural colour will be "The Band Concert."

Just as Mickey Rooney was getting the good breaks his talent deserves he smashed up his leg badly while tobogganing, which means some other lad will most likely have to play "Puck" in Reinhardt-Wagner Production of "Midsummer Night's Dream." They are unable to hold up the picture till he is perfectly fit.

It is difficult to keep track of the stars, as they interchange them so much at different studios. Clark Gable has been lent to Twentieth Century Fox for Jack London's "Call of the Wild." Ricardo Cortez is at M.G.M. opposite Virginia Bruce in "Without a Doubt." Charles is at the Twentieth Century making "Folies Bergere." Lionel Barrymore is at Fox co-starring with Shirley Temple in "Little Colonel," and Charles Laughton is at Paramount in "Ruggles of Red Gap."

Gertrude Lawrence and Doug Fairbanks Junr. have almost finished "La Boheme," which is taken from the novel, not the Opera.

Amelia Earhart co-operated on the story "Wings in the Dark" which Myrna Loy (borrowed from M.G.M.) is doing at Paramount with Cary Grant. The famous aviatrix also advises on technical details of flying.

It is good news that Claudette Colbert is being given another chance to sing in "The Gilded Lily." By the by Hollywood has taken a long time to give Ray Milland a decent part. This young British actor appeared as the Australian who was murdered in "Payment Deferred," and has only taken minor roles till Miss Colbert's new film. A star from Broadway, Fred Mac Murray will be another sensation from what I hear.

Lillian Harvey and Tullio Carmichael have finished "Once a Gentleman," and Miss Harvey has arrived in London to start work under the German director, Doctor Mersbach, in "Invitation to the Dance," which is set in the early nineteenth century, just as her famous "Congress Dances."

Winifred Shottler is at work with Sonnie Hale in "Marry the Girl."

Charles Boyer (husband of Pat Patterson) is back in Hollywood and glad to be at work in the Walter Wanger productions, although he said nasty things of Hollywood when he left it for good.—DIANE.

EUKUTOL

THE BIOLOGICAL SKIN TONIC

BEAUTY nowadays is not just an accidental gift of nature; it can be attained also by well-thought-out and systematic care of the body, that most exquisite and wonderful organization which has come to us from the Divine hand. And although beauty is more than skin-deep, a dazzling skin is indispensable to beauty. A few minutes devoted daily to the care of your skin will keep you young and supple, healthy and attractive. Beauty and health are the chief sources of happiness," says Besenfeld.

But how, you ask, can I appropriate beauty? Our medical, chemical and cosmetic experts have solved the question for you, Madam.

The preparations forming the foundation for the Eukutol System are the outcome of years of scientific labour, of investigations into the natural requirements of the skin, into the active elements and nutrients needed by the skin for the unremitting renewal of its beauty.

The Eukutol System is explained in a small booklet and when you have read it you will join the already vast ranks of Eukutol admirers. You will have every reason to be grateful for the results of the System. Make a beginning this very evening, with a free sample from all dispensaries and stores.

CLUB FAVOURED TO ENTER SENIOR SHIELD SOCCER FINAL

TSUI BROS. CLASH CHAMPION FORTUNATE TO TRIUMPH RUMJAHN BEST BET FOR TITLE

SHUTE TWIN IN ACTION
THIS AFTERNOON

(By "REFEREE")

Tsui Wai-pui, 1934 champion, entered the Fourth Round of the Colony Lawn Tennis Singles Championship yesterday at the H.K.C.C., but he was very nearly caught napping by his brother, Tsui Yan-pui, who recovered splendidly after an indifferent start to lead 4-3 and 40-love in the final set. Attempting to force the pace, and thus playing into the hands of a worried opponent, he, however, dropped the next two games for match after having shown superiority in all departments over the champion.

Tsui is not going to find the defence of his title any easy task, and it would not surprise me if he failed to reach the semi-final. His forehead has lost its accuracy as the result of his persistent endeavours to perfect the half volley stroke and the drop shot. Tsui Yan-pui, once he has curbed his impetuosity, will be an exceedingly dangerous opponent. Yesterday he had the match in the hollow of his hand as the result of his brother easing up in the second set, but lack of experience and a desire for outright winners proved his downfall. His powerful cross-court drives were a feature of his game, while his overhead work was neat and decisive.

While Tsui Wai Pui was being given a fright, S. A. Rumjahn, a favoured candidate for his fourth championship success, was taking things easily against Leung Ping Chiu, a promising Chinese player, whom he beat for the loss of five games. Rumjahn, unless Ricketts shows a sudden improvement, looks the best bet for the title.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

OPEN SINGLES (Third Round)
P. Kong beat M. Beach Thomas 6-2, 6-3.
S. A. Rumjahn beat Leung Ping-chiu 6-2, 6-3.

CLUB HANDICAP SINGLES

T. C. Monaghan (-3.5) beat H. J. Armstrong (-15) 6-3, 6-3.
CLUB HANDICAP DOUBLES
Capt. Manners R. N. and E. L. R. Shute (-30) beat S. F. Stapleton and A. L. Beant (-1.6) 6-0, 6-3.

Close Doubles Match

A fair crowd will probably be present for the match between Y. W. Lee, and Warwick Shute, the 13 year-old contender, this afternoon at the H.K.C.C., but considerably better tennis is promised in the doubles match between Capt. Manners and E. C. Fincher and H. Kwok and S. W. Liang, conquerors of J. W. Leonard and Y. Hachima. The experience of the former pair should decide a close match.

To-day's Programme

The following is to-day's programme of matches, commencing at 4.30 p.m.
OPEN SINGLES
Y. W. Lee v W. C. Shute
OPEN DOUBLES
Lu Tak Cheuk and Lu Tak Lam v Wong Fuk Nam and Ho Hin Kwan.

FAREWELL "JOHNNIE"!

MR. HEARD RETIRING NEXT MONTH

WINS 140 RACES IN LAST 8 SEASONS

(By "RAPIER")

IT is with regret that I have to say that Mr. "Johnnie" Heard is definitely proceeding to England next month. The "Grand Old Man of the Colony Turf" has been in China for about 36 years, "a record which is going to prove very hard to break." In that time he has ridden on every race-course in China, Shanghai, Hankow, Tientsin, Tsingtao, Hong Kong, Macao, Canton, Peiping, and, I think I am correct in saying, Foochow and Amoy away back in the old days.

Mr. Heard has won practically every big race in China on all the above mentioned race courses, a record which is likely to stand for many years. During his racing career he has ridden mostly for John Peel, which, up to 1929, had been the most outstanding stable ever since racing was commenced in China.

One thing that has always struck newcomers to the "Sport of Kings" is his willingness to advise the latest recruits. Mr. Heard has had about 36 years' experience of ponies and riding, and I know that he is willing at any time to give advice, which shows that he is definitely a "sportsman" in the true sense of the word. I wish him bon voyage, and a happy retirement.

Record Summarised

In the 1933 season, after returning from Tsingtao weighing over 200 lb., he staged a remarkable comeback to record 40 winners in local racing, which was second only to Mr. Leo Frost's 44 successes.

In 1929, the year that H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester rode on four occasions at the Valley, Mr. Heard established a local record by registering 30 wins in 107 starts. In that year he won the Valley Stakes and the Ladies' Purse.

The following year saw the advent of Mr. Frost, and "Johnnie" was forced to play second fiddle with 26 wins, as against Mr. Frost's

London, Yesterday.

The death occurred at Cheltenham of Mr. John Johnstone, formerly of Jardine Matheson's and one of Hong Kong's most well-known jockeys. He died at a Cheltenham hotel where he was playing for the Cheltenham Races.

Coming second on Mr. John Peel's Ca Cany in the 1904 Derby, and second on Mr. C. H. Ross's Ben Wyvis 11 in the 1907 race, Mr. Johnstone had to wait until 1908 before he won the Derby on Mr. John Peel's Kirkpatrick. After further placings he again won in 1912 on Mr. John Peel's Ben-Vreac and in the next year on Mr. Waytong's Cracker. He also won in 1915 on Mr. Cunningham's Jed, in 1917 on Messrs. Belth and Ross's Sol, and in 1918 on Mr. John Peel's Ridgeway.

MEET GUARDIANS OF LAW TO-MORROW

POLICE LIKELY TO FIELD STRONGEST ELEVEN

CLUB FORWARDS WILL DECIDE
ISSUE

(By "ROVER")

PROBABLY no other soccer competition this season has aroused so much interest than the semi-final round of the Senior Shield, which takes place over the week-end between the Club and the Police and the Athletic and South China "B."

The Club, in order to safeguard their team members from injury, have refrained from participating in any friendly games during the past week, while the Police team have undergone a special four days' training.

Stephens, the Police inside-right, and Parker, the Interport and Police left-half, were both suffering from ankle injuries as the result of recent games, but have been treated at the Kowloon hospital for the past week and will now be able to take the field to-morrow.

The Club, also, have not been immune from injuries, and Rodger, their custodian, is still bearing the scar from a kick he received from a South China forward during their Second Round tie a fortnight ago.

Judging on recent form the Club stand an excellent chance of gaining their first victory. In the competition for over 13 years, having last won the trophy in the 1922 season when they beat the Kowloon Football Club.

The Police have won the Senior Shield once in the 1920 season, but unlike any other team in the League, cannot be judged on their form, as it has been most inconsistent during the present season.

Powerful Attack

The Club's strongest point is their attack, and if Fowler and Forrow can break through between Gough and Parker, then Club supporters can rest assured of entry into the Final.

Bickford and Hill, who comprise the left-wing partnership, will be watched by Brooks, who, since being brought back among the halves, has been playing consistently good soccer.

Howe, the Club leader, must be given plenty of room to move round in, and if the three Club inside-forwards can reproduce anything like the form they produced in their game against South China "A", the Police will be given a tremendous task in preventing goals.

Robertson "Marking" Moss

Moss, who is likely to be the most dangerous Police winger, will find it very difficult to shake off Robertson, whose "terrier" methods still linger in the memory of South China supporters.

Tommy Fife, on the right-wing, will oppose a tricky wing-half in Andy Duncan, while Skinner's assignment is keeping a watch on the elusive Johnston.

The Police have a fairly useful forward line, but must make up their minds to shoot when within range, for they will find it extremely difficult to break through into the penalty area.

Tsui Wai-pui, Colony champion, left, was given a scare yesterday when his brother, Tsui Yan-pui, led him 4-3 and 40-love in the final set. (King's Studio).

On their most recent form, one cannot but help forecast a win for the Club.

The teams are:—
Police:—Perkins; Blackburn, C. Pile; Brooks, Gough, Parker; T. Pile; Stephens, Johnston, Green and Moss.
Club:—Rodger; Gamble, S. Strange; Robertson; Skinner; Duncan; Fowler, Forrow, Howe, Hill and Bickford.

ATHLETIC ARE EXPECTED TO BEAT S. CHINA

Dangerous Forwards And Strong Defence

SUNDAY'S SHIELD GAME

(By "ROVER")

The Athletic, who produced the finest football seen for several seasons when they were held to a draw by South China "A" a month ago, are expected to enter the final of the Senior Shield, when they encounter South China "B" on Sunday on the Sookunpoo ground.

There is no denying the fact that Chan Chun-wo ("Darkie" Chan) and Tsui Ah-fai make a tremendous difference to the Athletic team, and as their inclusion on Sunday is a certainty, the South China "B" defence, and in particular the two backs, Chung Chi-ying and Yu Hing-yuen, will probably find Darkie Chan more than they are able to cope with.

Tsui Ah-fai played a wonderful game for the Chinese on Sunday last when they won in the Governor's Cup series, and the Athletic defence has improved a hundred-fold since he joined them at the beginning of the season.

Beat S. China

JUNIOR SHIELD GAMES

(By "ROVER")

The Navy, holders of the Junior Shield for the past two years, meet the Engineers in their Semi-final Round encounter to-morrow at Caroline Hill at 2.30 p.m., while South China and the East Lanes clash in the other half on Sunday at Sookunpoo.

The Royal Engineers, who are entering their first semi-final encounter in the competition, are confident that they can repeat last week's victory over the Navy, when they won by the odd goal in three.

The Sappers are making no changes, but the sailors are replacing Banstead at inside-left for McLeod.

Last week was one of the very rare occasions when the Navy Juniors have slipped up, and there is every reason to believe that they will enter upon their third final in three seasons.

East Lanes Favoured.
In the other encounter on Sunday, the South China Juniors will probably meet their Waterloo at the hands of the East Lanes whose form in the Junior Divisions this season has been excellent.

The East Lanes, who have no Third Division fixture this week-end, have pooled the resources of the two teams, and should emerge from their first semi-final in the Junior Shield with flying colours.

South China have made one change in their team, Lee Chuen displacing Tang Yat-ming in goal. South China will be represented by the following:—

Lee Chuen; Eugene Chong, Tang Chung-pak; Wan Cho-lok, Ho Chi-wing, Mok Yin-sang; Ip Yan-po, Ip Koo-ming, Chan Tak-fai, Lau Chung-wing and Lai Tak-chai.

EAST LANES TEAM TO MEET SOUTH CHINA

The East Lanes have combined the resources of their junior teams for their fixture against S. China in the semi-final of the Junior Shield at Sookunpoo on Sunday.

The team is:—Harnaworth; Harwood, Steele; Walkden, Ekersley, B. Ford, Riddell, and Griffin.

ATHLETIC JUNIORS FOR KOWLOON ENCOUNTER

The following will represent the Athletic Juniors against Kowloon to-morrow in their Second Division soccer encounter:—Li Kwik-kee; Tang Kwong-wing, Lo Wal-man; Wong Ho-hang; Chan Shui-mui; To Wing-lim; Tse For-lin; Chow Yin-chung; Au Kim-fung; Chan Chun-ying and Cheung Moon-wing.

TO-MORROW'S PLAY-OFF AT KING'S PARK

The scene of many an epic hockey clash and of the first Inter-ports, the "Y" ground will to-morrow afternoon probably witness the greatest struggle in the Caer Clark Cup series when the St. Andrew's Ladies, challengers, clash with the champions, the Hong Kong Ladies in the play-off for the trophy.

The St. Andrew's Ladies are fielding the same side which was held to a draw by the "Y" Ladies, but they have not yet decided whether to play a goal-keeper or to retain their three-back formation.

The Hong Kong Ladies are making no changes from the side which previously held the Saints at Soekunpo.

Saints' Strong Position

The Saints have never been in a stronger position before, and the fact that the Hong Kong Ladies have twice been beaten this season, and also held to a draw, should give the challengers a little more confidence. Miss Hebling and Miss J. Smalley are likely to be the main obstacles to a Saints' victory and should they fail then the challengers can look forward to having their names engraved on the trophy for the first time.

Champions' Mistake

The Hong Kong Ladies have always made the mistake of relying to a great extent upon their inside-forwards for their goals, instead of opening up play by distribution to their wingers; this fault must be remedied if they are to hold the Cup they have never lost.

Much will depend, of course, upon the formation adopted by the Saints team; and I feel sure their three backs will be fully competent to deal with any attack.

The game commences at 3 p.m. and the teams are:—

St. Andrew's:—L. Jorge, E. Landolt and G. White; P. Everest, J. Wong and I. Woolley; P. Wong, I. Gittins, Mrs. G. White, P. Gittins and M. Churn.

Hong Kong:—B. Hanco, E. M. Gray and B. Hebling; C. Ferguson, N. McKenna and J. Smalley; W. Marsh, J. Dakeil, Mrs. Harrop, Mrs. Moutrie and A. Jacks.

GERMANY USEFUL SIDE: SCOTS AT STANDSTILL

PORTUGAL'S WISE MOVE

(By "STICKS")

WITH the first round of the local International hockey tournament barely a week away, it seems incredible that the majority of teams have not yet been finally selected.

Other representatives would have done well to have followed the example of the India representative, who, following the International meeting, immediately called the first trial on the following Sunday, playing last year's team, or a probably side, against the rest.

Reinforcements For Germany

Germany have played a series of trials, and, although by no means up to last year's standard, they have formed a fairly useful combination. I understand they are likely to be reinforced by some newcomers to the Colony from Canton.

Scotland have not yet formed a team and, in fact, have barely gathered together the nucleus of an eleven. Unfortunately, Mr. Jack Rodger, who captained the side last year, leaves the Colony to-day on furlough and will be badly missed from the defence.

Scotland's Nucleus

At present the Scottish recruits are A. T. Lay, G. Duncan and N. A. E. Mackay from the Club, J. T. K. Gilchrist, E. and S. MacNider from St. Andrew's, Blackburn of the Police, and Lieut. Comdr. Corrie-Hill and Lieut. Alexander Sinclair from the Navy.

Cord and McLellan, Scotland's former right-half, and centre-half, respectively have both left the Colony, while Corrie-Hill is away on his ship—though he is expected to be back in time. This is another problem which must be solved, but with E. MacNider and Alexander Sinclair, they have two of the positions already filled, while Gilchrist is another who could fill either the pivot or a wing-half berth.

Scots' Forward Line

Mackay, the Club right-winger, S. MacNider, L. A. R. Duncan, and A. T. Lay are available, although Duncan would probably fit in much better with the intermediate line than as a forward. In that case Gilchrist would be brought up into one of the inside forward positions.

It very much looks as if the Battalion team of the Welsh Fusiliers will represent Wales in the International tournament, although one or two civilians may be included in the side.

Welsh Hockey "Trials"

Mr. G. T. Palmer, who has been in charge of the Welsh team, has been severely handicapped by the fact that the Regiment has been out at Sun Wal Camp for several weeks. Now that they are back the regimental hockey representative, Lt. Gwydyr Jones, is still out at Camp.

There is a distinct possibility, however, that H. Owen Hughes, the Club, right-winger, and T. J. Price, the Y.M.C.A. left-winger, may be selected for those positions, and the rest of the side will be filled in by servicemen.

(Club ground).

A Wise Procedure

Although Portugal have held several trials, they are following a very wise procedure in selecting 15 names from which the final selection will be made a day or two previous to their encounter against Germany.

U. B. Souza, the Radio custodian, is a certainty for that position in the Portuguese team, while of the three backs named, A. M. Rodrigues, the triple interporter, and A. A. dos Remedios should be selected.

Probable Portuguese Halves

Of the four half-backs, E. L. Gosano is almost certain to fill the left-half position, while J. Gon-salves will be the pivot. In the one remaining position, I would rather see L. Oliveira play left-half than P. M. N. da Silva, who is a little on the slow side.

The Portuguese forwards will be selected from seven players and the most likely selections will be B. Gosano, A. M. Xavier, N. Beltrao, J. Pintos, and A. P. Souza, in that order.

China In Quandary

China are still in a quandary regarding the selection of their side, and, although a trial game was staged last Friday on the Radio ground, Caroline Hill, the selectors found it impossible to make up their minds about the team.

THREE NEW FORWARDS INCLUDED IN SIDE

Several changes have been made in the Combined Services' hockey eleven to meet the Shanghai German Hockey Club on Tuesday, March 26, on the Royal Naval Recreation ground at King's Park.

Dulla Singh, the brilliant Army and Colony centre-half, has been dropped in favour of Newsom of the Navy, while Howie, Garthwaite and Senior appear among the forwards in place of Donald, Eaden and Curry of the Navy, all of whom are at present away from the Colony.

Although Curry is reported to be returning to the Colony early next week, the selection of Senior for the leader's position is an excellent one, for he is thoroughly familiar with the play of his two insides, Garthwaite and Kartar Singh, both of whom are interporters. Lal Singh retains his left-wing position. "Pie" Hollingsworth (Lincoln), Lt. Metcalfe (H.K.S.R.A.), and Lieut. Comdr. Phillips (Royal Navy); Lieut. Holland-Martin (Royal Navy); Lieut. Comdr. Newsom (Royal Navy); and L/Nalk "Alar" Dia (Punjab); Lieut. Royce (Royal Navy); Lt. Garthwaite (H.K.S.R.A.); W. C. Senior (A.E.C.); L/Nalk Kartar Singh (Punjab); and L/Nalk Lal Singh (Punjab).

GOLF
NOTES

(By "NIBLICK")

H. MUNDY and J. Dennis (Messrs. Dodwell and Co.) took J. D. Thomson and G. Milne (Dairy Farm Co.) to the 20th hole before a decision could be reached for the right to enter the Second Round of the "Hong" Foursomes.

At what proved to be the final hole Dodwell's representatives managed a par three to clinch the match after the Dairy Farm had "lipped" the hole for a like number of strokes.

The holders, Kowloon Wharf and Godown Co. were opposed by W. Hirst and F. Angus, representing the S. C. and A. staff, and finished all square after Hirst had sunk a "seven yarder" on the last green.

Other results were as follows: Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Co. beat J. D. Humphreys (Coales and Andrews) 3 and 2; Govt. Marine Surveyors (Collings and Charlton) beat H.K. and Shai Hotels (Barry and Murphy) 2 and 1, after the Hotel Coy. had been in the lead by no less than four holes.

The Sanitary Dept. (Seddon and Gellatly) fell to H.K. Electric Co. (Jones and Stoker) by the wide margin of 7 and 6, while Falconer's (Ross and King) surprisingly beat the P.W.D. (Simpson and Murphy) 2 and 1.

COMPETITION RULING

ONE distinguishing characteristic of the game of golf is that it is played under the most widely varying conditions attendant on games of organized competition. Accordingly, considerable latitude must be allowed in drawing up a code of rules to govern play. In the final analysis, this means that there are bound to arise numerous situations, in which common sense and the spirit of fair play, consistent with the general purpose of the rules, must be employed in reaching a decision on any point which may arise.

This is rather a roundabout way of approaching the point I am trying to make, and the preceding remarks cover a rather larger field than I had at first intended, but an illustration last Sunday set me thinking of the question of Rules.

At the end of 18 holes, two matches finished "all square," the first competitive four proceeded to play on until one side had won a hole, and the match. The other four, however, decided to re-play the whole 18 holes, the following week-end. "One could leave it to the discretion of individual players, but the fact remains that this particular competition is governed by rules, one of which states that the first round must be completed on or before a certain date, which happened to be Sunday last. Under this ruling, therefore, it must be assured that the replayed match is outside the defined bounds and the players could be disqualified. The fact that two different methods of decision were adopted in the contest in question seems to call for an elucidation of the rules governing match play from the committee concerned.

OVERHEARD AT THE 19TH

".....he thinks a spoon is to lift the ball out of casual water." ".....of course he's a philosopher, he can look at an empty glass with a smile."

".....left the Clubhouse at five minutes off midnight on December 31, to play the first and last hole so that he could truthfully say he went 'out' in '34 and 'came back' in '35."

HE SURE CAN PLAY GOLF

Here is a true story, certified by James Briad. The clubhouse at Walton Heath is a bungalow of surprising modesty, considering the standing of the club.

Briad's shop is in a little detached building space forty yards or so away.

An American arrived in the clubhouse the other day, said he was "Plus" two in Connecticut," and asked for a game.

He was referred to the secretary, sent to Briad and played round with him.

No mention was made of any handicap. Briad won by some thing like ten and eight. "The victim's" comment on returning to the clubhouse, was "That guy in the little shack sure can play golf."

BRILLIANT DEFENCE IN ENGLAND TRIAL

COLONY STARS FAIL TO STRIKE FORM

PROBABLE ENGLAND XI SELECTED

(By "Sticks")

THE brilliant defence of the Colour backs provided the outstanding feature of the second England International hockey trial, which was held yesterday on the Y.M.C.A. ground at King's Park, and which resulted in a win for Whites over Colours by the odd goal in three.

Cox, left-back, Yeomans, pivot, and Farmer, left-half, gave a wonderful exhibition of spoiling and interception, a result of which was that the Colour forwards had most of the play and would have been several goals in the lead at an early stage of the game had it not been for the individual selfishness of Reeks.

Lt. Dawson, a newcomer to the Colony and a former captain of Sandhurst Military College, gave a sparkling exhibition at inside-right, and his work with May was a delight to witness.

Garthwaite did not shine until the last ten minutes of the encounter, but Senior gave a first-class performance in the centre-forward position for Whites, and his two goals were very neat pieces of work.

Divitt was starved for a greater part of the game, but his blundering methods in the second half, when in possession, availed him nothing.

Metcalfe made one or two serious mistakes in his own goalmouth, and would have done much better to have let his goalkeeper deal with the shots instead of stopping them almost on the goal-line.

Fowler's Promising Display

G. Fowler, at inside-left, gave a promising exhibition in the opening half when he distributed the ball in excellent manner to Toynce and made the openings for Reeks, who was, however, unaccustomed to Fowler's play and bungled glorious opportunities.

In the latter stages of the game Fowler fell away, except from the corners against his side, when he repeatedly intercepted.

Jessop was given more to do in goal than F. Fowler, but was shaky when under pressure, although he effected some first-time saves.

W. A. Reed's Superb Display

Fowler performed well in the opening half and saved brilliantly, but for some unaccountable reason in the second half, he twice let the ball through from Senior. He was, however, very cool, and covered Metcalfe's every movement carefully.

COLONY XI

SELECTORS WORRIED ONLY
OVER LEADER

FINAL TRIAL NEXT WEDNESDAY

SENIOR OR G. SINGH?

(By "STICKS")

Although ten players have been selected to represent the Colony against the visiting Shanghai German Hockey Club on Sunday, March 24, on the Royal Naval Recreation Club's ground at King's Park, the eleventh position, that of the centre-forward berth, is still doubtful; the final selection lies between Gurbachan Singh, the interporter leader, and Warrant Officer Senior, the Army leader.

I understand that a final trial will be held on Wednesday next at King's Park when the probable eleven will oppose an H.K.S.R.A. side, when Senior will be played in one half and Gurbachan Singh in the second period.

The following is the probable side:—Hollingsworth (Army); Khan Bahadur (Army) and A. M. Rodriguez (Recreation); W. A. Reed (Club); Dulla Singh (Army); Alaf (Club); G. E. R. Divitt (Club); Garthwaite (Army); A. N. Oiler; Kartar Singh (Army) and Lal Singh (Army).

W. A. Reed gave a superb display at right-half for Whites and had his "eye" in. His interceptions, stick-work, and last-minute clearances contributed largely towards Whites' success, and he is a certainty for the England team.

Williams Delights

Gough was very weak in Whites' pivotal position and could do little to prevent Fowler and Reeks from breaking through, although the latter found E. V. Reed too much for him.

Lt. Williams played up to form in the left-half berth for Whites and delighted spectators and selectors alike with magnificent passes to Taylor, his winger.

Contrary to expectations, Parker did not shine in the Whites' inside-left position, and was poorly positioned throughout, continually getting in the way of Senior and Garthwaite.

Parker Uncomfortable

There is no denying the fact that his best position is left-half, where he is in a class by himself.

The game was played at a very fast pace throughout and the passing on the whole was very good and neat.

The White forwards displayed more understanding than their opponents, who were inclined to stray out of position.

Best Wing-Combine

Dawson and May certainly were the best wing combine, although May would have done better if he had centred earlier instead of trying for goals on his own.

Colours' backs and halves gave one of the best exhibitions of defensive play seen for several months, and their clearances were quick and accurate in their execution.

On the run of the play the Colours should have won comfortably and it was unfortunate that Fowler should have let two comparatively easy shots from Senior pass him.

The Colours took the lead through a goal-by-Reeks from an opening by G. Fowler, but in the second half Senior twice broke through to net on each occasion. Mr. A. A. Dand refereed and the teams were:

Colours:—F. Fowler (Y.M.C.A.); Metcalfe (H.K.S.R.A.) and Cox (E. Lanes); Neighbour (E. Lanes); Yeomans (Lincoln); and Farmer (Y.M.C.A.); May (Signals); G. Fowler (Y.M.C.A.); Reeks (Lincoln); Dawson (E. Lanes) and Toynce (Lincoln). (Continued on Page 10)

MIRACLE CHILD AGAIN TEAMED WITH HER FAVOURITE, JAMES DUNN

ELISSA LANDI SURPRISES IN COMEDY DRAMA

By Diane

James Dunn and Shirley Temple are once more together in Shirley's latest Fox Film starring picture, "Bright Eyes," dramatic story of an orphaned daughter and her adopted father. "Bright Eyes" is Shirley's biggest vehicle to date.

Careers Of The Stars

ANNA NEAGLE'S real name is Marjorie Robertson. Born in Essex in 1908. Was at one time a teacher of gymnastics and ballroom dancing. Made her theatrical debut in Charlot's Revue in 1926, and her film debut in 1930. Unmarried.

MADY CHRISTIAN comes of a famous Viennese theatrical family, her mother being an opera singer of note and her father an actor. She studied under the great Max Reinhardt in Berlin and after a successful stage career made a sensation in the film version of "The Waltz Dream." She was liked locally when we had the chance of seeing her with Lilian Harvey and Charles Boyer in "The Only Girl," but "Wicked Woman" is her first Hollywood effort.

CHARLES BICKFORD was born in Cambridge, Mass., of Irish parents nearly 40 years ago. Started a course of Engineering at the Institute of Technology in Boston, but preferred a roving life which led him to start working as a stoker in the American Navy. Later obtained a commission during the Great War, and then came 10 years on the stage, making a sensational debut in films in 1929 in the first Cecil B. de Mille talkie—"Dynamite." Married and has two children. Recently made a film "Red Wagon" in England.

JEAN BLONDELL was born in New York City in 1909. Daughter of professionals, she toured the world when a small child, appearing with her family in all the chief cities of Europe, China, Canada, and Australia. Then came a few years on the American stage and her first film in 1930. Star at Warner's now, and happily married to George Barnes, ace camera-man, with one son.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT was born in Paris in 1905. Went to America when eight years old. Began to earn her living as a stage designer, and through bluff obtained her first chance to act. Appeared in London in "The Barker" with Norman Foster whom she afterwards married, but they still live in separate establishments. Went round the world in a freighter in 1930 touching at Hong Kong for only a day. First film success "The Lady Lies," and now one of the biggest drawing cards for Paramount.

HARRY WILCOXON was born in the British West Indies in 1905. Is an expert swimmer and was once a pearl and salvage diver in the West Indies. Earned his living in London on the sales staff of a London tailor, but, caring more for the stage, threw it up in 1927 and started his theatrical life. First film for B.P. in 1931. First film in Hollywood was "Cleopatra."

WARREN WILLIAM was born in Minnesota. Educated at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. Followed in his father's footsteps and became a publisher, but later turned to his real love, the stage, and played in stock company, marrying his leading lady. Then came the Great War and service overseas. First film "Woman from Monte Carlo" for First National. Now a star with Warner's.

CARY GRANT was born in Bristol, England. Ran away from home when 15 and joined a troupe of knock-about comedians. Toured in "circus" and carnivals in England and the States, and one time earned his living as a "Bill" walker. First film, he made a big success "This is the Night," then a starring contract with Paramount. Recently married Virginia Cherrill, but marriage now dissolved.

Cecil B. de Mille's latest spectacle, "Cleopatra," is another tribute to his mastery of pictorial effects, and his command over armies of extras. As usual the film is breath-taking, handsome, lavish and extreme, which is typical of this famous man. I do not think there is another Director to-day with his courage and one who so plainly stamps his individuality upon his films.

He defies his critics in his free translation from the ancient language into modern American. In trying to avoid the stilted dialogue he has gone to the other extreme and you must not mind hearing Roman soldiers saying "Hello" to each other, straining hard to avoid the Shakespearean manner.

Of the acting performances the Englishman, Henry Wilcoxon, gives the outstanding one, and his scene with C. Aubrey Smith, when he realises that his armies are deserting him in Egypt because of Cleopatra, is specially well acted by both.

Warren William looks the part "Julius Caesar," and Joseph Schildkraut is another worthy mention. I admit to a preference for the lovely Claudette Colbert in modern gowns and sophisticated comedy-dramas. I had the same feeling when I saw her in "The Sign of the Cross"—she seemed like a beautiful mannequin in fancy dress.

Really the story hardly counts—it is the luxuriousness, the feasts, the festivities, dancing girls, and elaborate settings. De Mille gives us a passionate love story with thrilling effects, so we will not think of the real Cleopatra and Antony, that would take away the glamour. Cecil B. de Mille argues that if we know our history correctly, we would realise he has not overdone the extravagance in the scene where "Cleopatra" sets out to impress "Antony." At least he has placed his characters in correct historical settings, and gives us a feast for the eye which will be difficult to emulate. You know what to expect in a Cecil B. de Mille film—his masterhand over all, but he does spell box-office, and in this production has gathered a cast worthy of the gorgeousness of the spectacle.

It will "run" at the Alhambra, Kowloon, and the Central, Queen's Road, from to-morrow and should prove to be here, as everywhere, one of the outstanding hits of the year.

"Wicked Woman"

The sort of dramatic material in which an emotional actress excels, in the old days Ruth Chatterton would have revelled in it. Having seen Mady Christians in "The Waltz Dream" and "The Only Girl" (with Lilian Harvey and Charles Boyer) she seems to me to have been miscast by M.G.M. in her first picture made in Hollywood. We find her as the mother of many children who kills her worthless husband to save them from his influence.

Several ages and sizes of children work out the destinies of the family and the cast includes Jean Parker with Charles Bickford and his excellent acting ability helps in every way to put the new Viennese star's first picture over in a worthy manner. (Queen's)

"Enter Madame"

Grace Moore was mentioned for the role in this story of a temperamental opera singer. If she had played it a double would not have been required for the singing, but it must be admitted we regret the absence of Miss Moore, but are thankful that Elissa Landi is given such a chance to be so passionate, human, and lovely.

Cary Grant, the husband who refuses to be "Mr. Prima Donna," is entirely satisfying, and it is no wonder Paramount rate him worthy of stardom. This is one of his best acting parts to date, and is most certainly also one of Miss Landi's. Perhaps some of the Hong Kong people will remember how excellently Adele Blood played this at the old City Hall many years ago.

There is not much to the story just a series of scenes of temperament, but the acting from a cast which includes Lynne Overman, Frank Albertson and Sharon Lynne, and the comedy work of Miss Landi and Mr. Grant ensure an evening of thorough entertainment. (Queen's)

"Here Is My Heart"

Here is a picture you must clap your hands about. It is Bing Crosby by all the way, and that means one grand evening. Bing has never done better, and watch the novelty when he sings a duet with one of his gramophone records. Just his natural charming self aided in the humour in priceless fashion by Roland Young, Alison Skipworth and Reginald Owen, with Kitty Carlisle (at the present moment Bing's favourite leading lady), queenly and attractive, holding up the romance side of the story.

George M. Cohan, Broadway's best-loved Up-to-the-Minute Man, spins the wheel of several destinies in the new screen version of his own smash hit, "Gambling," which is coming to the King's Theatre.

Many film fans will recall one of the best acting parts ever played by Adolphe Menjou and Florence Vidor, in "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," and the old plot is all dressed up in ultra-modern raiment, but just as entertaining as ever. More of this later, but it will be running at the Alhambra and the Central simultaneously.

Among the big ter in the box-office appeal today, Bing Crosby comes high, and this is easily one of his best films. Not to be missed.

"The Queen's Affair"

Anna Neagle and Fernand Graavy were last seen here in "Bitter Sweet," but this B. & D. Production, with direction by "The Cecil B. de Mille of England," Herbert Wilcox, gives them more scope and they are both at ease and turn in good performances.

We find "Anna" selling stockings in New York when she is suddenly called to the throne of Sicily, but is no sooner crowned than dethroned by the black-shirted hero (Fernand Graavy). Anna goes into exile and meets "Karl" in a neutral country, and, strange as it may seem, neither recognizes the other and naturally fall in love. I leave you to guess the uncommon ending to this romance.

The support is good—Muriel Ake, Reginald Purdell, Miles Maleson, and Edward Chapman among others. The photography and effects are done in a manner worthy of B. & D. and the best director in England. (King's)

James Dunn is once again Shirley Temple's hero and best pal in the baby star's latest Fox Film production, "Bright Eyes." Jimmy plays "Loop," ace of pilots, who defied a storming heaven and an angry earth for Shirley.

SHORT SHOTS

PAUL Muni refuses to play in more than two pictures a year, so Pat O'Brien will step into the magnificent part in "Oil for the Lamps of China," while Muni acts in the New York Theatre Guild in "The Postman Always Rings Twice" with that really great film actress Barbara Stanwyck opposite.

Frances Drake, who was born in the States and who learned all her film work in a British studio, was given a grand chance in the M.G.M. "Forsaking All Others," but her accent is considered too English so she has to learn "American." The strange part is that her teacher in Hollywood is a girl from Manchester, England.

Ned Sparks, whose mother was born in Scotland, is still trying to make that promised visit to his mother's native land, but, being so popular in films, he goes from one to the other. Edward Everett Horton must be the hardest worked man though—he is never in less than two films at one time at different studios.

Ida Lupino, who has acquired a very American accent, is back at Paramount and her first picture will be "Two on a Tower" with Tullio Carminati (borrowed from Columbia) and Mary Ellis.

Yvonne Printemps, famous French actress who recently finished a successful season with Noel Coward in "Conversation Piece" will act for an independent company in Hollywood.

"Anna Karenina" will not be Garbo's next film (remember her in it as "Love" with John Gilbert in the silent?), as Elizabeth Bergner intends it for her next at Elstree.

Josephine Hutchinson, the new First National star (recently seen here in "Happiness Ahead") was married first to the grandson of inventor "Telephone" Bell, but after her divorce recently married a film agent named Townsend in Hollywood.

This does not speak well for the natural beauty of Merle Oberon (Queenie Thompson of Calcutta). After her arrival in Hollywood Twentieth Century announced they would need to spend $35,000 on her clothes and beauty treatments so that she will be found smart and attractive enough to act as leading lady in the film "Folies Bergere de Paris" with Chevalier.

Gracie Fields is still the highest paid cinema artist in Britain. She is to receive £150,000 for her next three pictures, and yet they have no sale outside the British Isles.

Arms And The Man

It is an old saying that "the children of darkness are wiser than the children of light." The truth of it could not need any clearer demonstration than is to be had by looking round the world to-day to observe how the struggle for peaceful conditions of life is faring as against the trade in the means of destroying life. Let us leave on one side for a moment the broader questions of national policy in which failure is open and avowed. It may be taken for granted that every Government object to being territorialised or ejected at the point of the bayonet. Whether it be a democracy or an autocracy every form of government does at least wish to perpetuate itself, and will, if it can, so prohibit or restrict the possession and use of firearms as to avoid being "put on the spot." The evidence is that whether through the inadequate provision of police, or actual sympathy with the "direct action" section, the maker of rifles and cartridges always gets the best of it. It remains a true that law is an empty formula without force behind it. It is also true that just as "the devil can quote Scripture to his purpose," so can the enemies of society shelter themselves behind high-sounding principles.

The Pan-American Congress is a good example. When Canning suggested to President Monroe that it should be accepted as a principle of policy that no European Power should acquire any further territory on the American Hemisphere, he announced that he had "called in a New World to redress the balance of the old." An admirable object. But how many shooting matches dignified with the name of Revolution has it not covered with its protective cloak? President Roosevelt the First, however, could not face the prospect of the capital invested in the Panama Canal being at the mercy of South American conditions, and he called in "the Big Stick" to establish a small State that is practically a Protectorate of the United States. The "Big Stick" was again called in to restore order and solvency in Nicaragua, and the long occupation by American Marines was thoroughly useful to all concerned, however defective may have been its logical justification.

The Pan-American Congress, however, with logic on its side, called in the Monroe principle on behalf of the South American Continent, and objected to such occupations or interferences on the ground that the North American Republic was just as much foreign to its constituent States as any European Power.

and President Roosevelt the Second declared that while he was President the Union Government would under no circumstances interfere with any South American State. That is why it is impossible to stop the unfortunate people of Bolivia and Paraguay from continuing their Kilkenny cat struggle till they have nobody left to pull a trigger. The triumph of the international munitioniers is complete.

The fierce civil war in Cuba is even more instructive, because a powerful navy or combination of navies has a much better chance of effective control of an island territory with difficult geographical features; and also because at the establishment of the Cuban Government after the war with Spain the right to land troops to restore or maintain order was specially reserved by what was called "the Platt Amendment." That provision has been cancelled by a recent treaty; and what was only a year or two ago a wealthy and prosperous country is being reduced to penury by a paralysis of transportation and a series of strikes, backed by the inevitable rifle and accompanied by the execution of leaders without any show of trial. In this case the legal principle that a policeman can shoot an escaping prisoner whom he cannot otherwise stop is invoked. The victims are taken to a lonely rendezvous and told to run. The legal principle invoked in Germany and elsewhere has been "resisting arrest" with the widest possible interpretation of resistance to include an enquiry for the reason of the arrest.

There is no need to recall the Greek rebellion on which we commented the other day. Neither Government nor rebels could obtain munitions except on cash terms. Even the campaign in Asia Minor the disastrous end of which is the reason for Greece's present troubles, was privately financed by Sir Basil Zaharoff, who was inspired by "patriotism" to spend about half of his profits from supplying us with submarines and so on to fit out his fellow countrymen as food for Kemal Pasha's powder. We are told that the funds for the latest fight were supplied by a prosperous brewer and the wealthy wife of M. Venizelos. "The appetite grows by eating" and even those who have the best means of knowing what war is become clients of the purveyors of death.

More strength to the elbow of those who are trying to get peace through the League or through regional treaties; but we come back to the truism that what matters more than the Arms is the Man behind them. If some new invention or bigger concentration of power proves to be the only method of preventing men from committing suicide, the future of the freedom of the individual is very dark.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

CHINS UP

Mr. Lloyd George was more fortunate in his chairman at Bangor than on one occasion in the past.

That former chairman invited Mr. Lloyd George to stand up. "Now," said the exhibitor to the audience, "are you not disappointed to see that Mr. Lloyd George is such a small man?"

L.G.'s retort was instant. He invited the chairman to stand up. He rose to his six feet something. He had a small head.

"Now," said L.G. to the audience, "in North Wales we measure a man's height from the chin up."

TWO YOUNG MEN

Here is another story of L. G.'s earlier days.

Michael Davitt, the Irish Nationalist, had addressed a meeting, and members of the audience were invited to move and second a vote of thanks. Two young men responded. They were eloquent. They inspired Davitt with a characteristic gibe.

If those young men were in Ireland, he boasted, they would be put forward as candidates for Parliament, but in England they would have to stand aside in favour of stolid old men who had succeeded in business and had to get their reward. And so on.

The two young men were Tom Ellis, who became a Minister and Chief Liberal Whip, and David Lloyd George.

Your Daily Smile!

The description, in a new novel, of the inner workings of a bank is absurdly exaggerated, according to a critic. The account, in fact, is overdrawn.

The Greater Test
"I took up this game," the hopeless novice said apologetically to his caddy, "merely to practice self-control."

"You ought to have gone in for caddying, sir."

The manager of a circus was hearing complaints from his employees. "Well," he said to the miserable-looking India-Rubber Man, "What's wrong with you?"

"It's the Strong Man," said the other.

"What's he been doing?" asked the manager.

"Every time he writes a letter, he uses me to rub out his mistakes," explained the freak.

The Method
Gentleman (to a very rich elderly lady at a party): "Who is that handsome young man standing out there?"
Lady: "That's my son-in-law. He's a very brilliant young man—made a fortune by the law."

Gentleman: "Really! How's that?"
Lady: "The law made him my daughter's husband."

TRAFFIC CASES

Wrong Turning Taken In Statue Square

SIGNAL DISREGARDED

Summoned at the instance of Mr. C. Champkin, Mr. A. A. da Silva driver of private car No. 1440, was fined $25 by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning for dangerous driving in Statue Square.

Mr. Champkin, in evidence, said that on the morning of March 2, he was riding in a rickshaw, proceeding along Chater Road from the Hong Kong Cricket Club, when the defendant's car suddenly came out the right, instead of the left, side of the Statue at a speed estimated at 25 miles per hour.

For disobeying a traffic signal at the junction of Queen's Road and Garden Road on February 28, Mr. A. G. Plovannell, Manager of the Hong Kong Hotel, was fined $10.

Mr. Plovannell said that he did not pay much attention to the signal as there was no traffic at the time, and turned up towards Garden Road. Traffic Inspector Alexander stated that the defendant was coming along Queen's Road west and the red light was against him, while the green light was given to another car coming from the east. Mr. Plovannell turned to the left, although there was no danger of collision.

Mr. H. Arfas, driver of private car No. 718, was fined $5 for leaving his car unattended in Queen's Road Central on February 28.

TELEVISION AS IT IS TO-DAY NEARING PERFECTION DIFFICULTY OF ALLOTTING WAVE-BAND

(By John L. Baird)

TELEVISION was first actually broadcast as far back as 1926, this broadcast taking place through the B.B.C.'s station of 2 LO from Motograph House in London, at that time the headquarters of the Baird Television Company. The early transmission from 2 LO, which were, of course, purely experimental, were very soon discontinued, and the Baird Television Company applied for and obtained a licence to transmit television independently, erecting their own wireless station and sending out from their own studios.

Wave-Length Difficulty

These studio transmissions had to be dropped, as it was impossible to find a wave-length for them on the medium wave-band which did not cause interference with other services. The company again approached the B.B.C. for permission to send out television through their stations, the only channels then available.

A committee to investigate the situation was formed by the then Postmaster-General, Sir William Mitchell-Thomson (now Lord Selkirk), and this committee recommended that new transmission facilities should be given. On September 30, 1929, we commenced broadcasting through 2 LO, once more from our own studios in Long Acre, and a little later the whole of our apparatus was transferred to the B.B.C., who from that date to the present time have been sending out regular television transmissions with this apparatus.

There seems some confusion in the public mind as to the difference between these television images and the images we are now sending out from the Crystal Palace—the so-called "high-definition" images.

More Lines—More Detail

The difference is one of quality. The 30-line image is made up of 30 strips and can only show head and shoulder pictures, or pictures of simple scenes such as a person dancing. These pictures are coarse in grain and limited in detail.

The high-definition television image, on the other hand, consists of from 180 to 400 lines, and can show very considerable detail. It is possible to send such things as boxing matches, and jumping horses—in fact any outdoor scene—and also to transmit the ordinary commercial films with a quality equal to the home cinema.

The general public are not quite clear, perhaps, why high-definition apparatus is not to be put immediately into the B.B.C. in place of the present low definition. Unfortunately, these high-definition pictures cannot be transmitted through the present B.B.C. wave-lengths. They demand the use of what are termed "ultra-short waves," that is, waves in the region of six metres, as compared with the waves of the order of 250 metres at present being used by the B.B.C.

At the Crystal Palace, the Baird Television Company have completely equipped studios and a powerful ultra-short wave wireless transmitter which has been in experimental operation for some considerable time. This gives satisfactory reception over a radius of 35 miles.

Short Wave System

The Crystal Palace was chosen as it has the most commanding position in London. The top of the South Tower, where the transmitting aerial is situated, is approximately 700 ft. above sea level, and is visible from almost any part of London. This is a point of vital importance with ultra-short waves, for they behave somewhat similarly to light waves. The transmitter, might be compared to a lighthouse, the higher the aerial in relation to its surroundings the better the light.

The fact that these waves behave in a manner similar to light limits their range, and at present the most that can be satisfactorily served. This, however, covers a population of something of the order of eight to 10 million. The logical way to commence a service must be from ultra-short wave transmitters in the centre of each densely-populated area, commencing, of course, with a service for London and Greater London.

Receiving Sets

So much for the transmitting side of the question, but what chiefly concerns the public is reception. The 30-line transmissions from the B.B.C. can be received with an ordinary wireless receiving set, but an ultra-short wave receiver will be required to receive ultra-short waves. The complete home apparatus as it is at present consists of a cabinet somewhat similar to that of a radio-gramophone, but with the addition of a screen 9 in. by 12 in. upon which an image of what is taking place at the broadcasting station appears.

The question of price will depend largely upon demand; the price of the first sets will be somewhere in the region between £50 and £80. If the demand proves sufficient a cheaper set might be produced in the region of £25. An apparatus of this kind gives the equivalent to a home talkie, with the vast difference that the scenes shown are actually taking place and are shown without the need of purchasing or hiring films.

Television is as important to broadcasting as the addition of sound was to the silent film, and I am convinced that in the future every wireless set will be equipped with a television screen.

KOWLOON SOCCER PLAYER FINED

Collides With Another Car When Learning To Drive

W. Knox, the well-known Kowloon footballer, of No. 8 Cameron Road, appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning in answer to a summons for failing to keep on the left side of the Road when driving his car round the corner at the junction of Waterloo and York Roads, Kowloon. Tong, at 10.05 a.m. on February 28.

Defendant pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined $5 by Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham.

Traffic Inspector Nicolls stated in his prosecution that the defendant, who was taking his third lesson with a learner's license, turned from Waterloo Road into York Road on the right side of the road and collided with another car which was driven by a lady, coming down York Road. He added that it was not entirely the fault of the defendant.

COLONY HOCKEY PLAYER ROBBED

Dulla Singh Victimised

Naik Dulla Singh, of the Punjab Regiment, and the Hockey Interporter, appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, as complainant in the case in which Wong Wai-cheung, a 30-year-old unemployed, was charged with stealing a travelling rug from Whitfield Barracks.

The case was remanded for 48 hours, in order to make further enquiries.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself begging?"
"Madam—I am not begging—I am a professional coin collector!"

UN LONG SCHOOL SPEECH DAY

More Pupils Reported Last Year

MRS. BROWN PRESENTS PRIZES

At the annual distribution of prizes held at the Un Long School this morning, Mrs. A. O. Brown, wife of the Inspector of English Schools, gave away the prizes.

The Headmaster, in making his report for the year said that the average attendance showed an increase of 14 over the previous year, and the maximum enrolment was 112. Proof that the intelligence of the community of Un Long was improving lay in the fact that the pupils seemed more brilliant this year than previously.

The health of the School had been good and the Headmaster concluded by saying that great interest had been taken in sports, especially football, basketball, and ping pong.

Mr. Brown then thanked the Headmaster for inviting Mrs. Brown to distribute the prizes and said that he was pleased to note the general improvement. He advised the pupils to play games, read books, do their jobs, whatever they might be, as well as they could, and to help one another.

COLOURS THAT FISH DISLIKE

But Not If They Lead To The Food

EXPERIMENTS TO PRESERVE ANGLER'S PREY

Fish are colour sensitive, according to Mr. John Berry, research officer to the Avon Biological Survey, in its annual report.

Mr. Berry sought to discover whether a barrage of coloured lights might be effective in keeping "vermin fish" away from the spawning grounds of salmon and other fish appreciated by anglers. He found that dark indigo-blue was the most powerful deterrent to eels, but the same colour had no effect on dace, minnows, or gudgeon. Green is, however, a "mild deterrent" to gudgeon. Greenish-blue proved strikingly successful with "miller's thumbs," and to a lesser extent with loach, while both these fish certainly found green "annoying." Neither red, orange nor yellow had any appreciable effect on any of the fish tested.

The experiments were made at Southampton University.

Dozen Colours Tried
Altogether a dozen main colours were tried, and it was found that shade differences were readily noticed by fish. But, alas, it was also found that fish readily learnt to associate a coloured light with food and would brave the most hated colour if food was expected. If disappointed in their quest, they quickly disappeared.

It is, therefore, suggested that fish may become acclimatized to light of any colour, and Mr. Berry suggests that no general application of this method of control can yet be recommended.

CHARITY BALL AT HOTEL CECIL

In Aid Of Hospital And Clinic

A BENEFITTING CAUSE TO COLONY

A charity ball will be held in aid of the Children's Hospital and Clinic, Kowloon, under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., and the honorary presidency of Sir Shou-son Chow, Kt., L.L.D. (Hong Kong), at the Hotel Cecil on Saturday, March 30, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The Children's Hospital and Clinic being allocated in a section temporarily at the Precious Blood Convent, has been rendering invaluable medical aid and care for the poor children among the ignorant working class.

Benefitting Colony

Its work is benefitting the community in general; any ailment and any misfortune befalling one, cannot but in some ways inflict injury on all those who are in contact with the sufferer, consequently, the medical relief and instructions given by the hospital and clinic with the help of its honorary doctors and the support of the H.K. Society for the Protection of Children, mean not only to alleviate the suffering of the young ones, but also to prevent their infection from spreading all over the city.

It is hoped that this function, at a very moderate charge of $3.50 per head for the dinner and dance, will be heartily supported.

Mr. Tse Yung-kwong has donated a sum of $100 towards half the cost of the orchestra.

Tickets are obtainable at the Hotel Cecil.

The General Committee

The following constitute the Committee:—

Patron: H.E. Sir William Peel; Hon. President, Sir Shou-son Chow; President, Mr. Tze Yung Kwong; Chairman, Mr. R. C. H. Lim; Joint Hon. Secretaries: Miss Adele Lee and Mrs. S. Y. Poon; Joint Hon. LECTURE AT THE "Y'S" MEN

Mr. Peter Sin Talks On Hainan

THE ISLAND, ITS PEOPLE AND GAME PROSPECTS

An interesting talk regarding hunting in Hainan Island was delivered by Mr. Peter Sin, Governor of the Y's Men's Club of the Southern District in China, at the Y's Men's Club of Hong Kong yesterday.

It will be recalled that Mr. Sin, together with Dr. Li Shu Fan, Gen. Gaston Wong, Mr. Wong Bor and a party, recently went to Hainan in pursuit of big game. The lecture dealt with that expedition.

Hainan

In the course of his talk Mr. Sin, said that Hainan was of great strategic importance to China and was the only island in the Pacific which remained unexploited. Hainan has a population of 4,500,000 people, consisting mostly of Chinese and 200,000 natives, known as the Lai tribe. The greater part of the Lai tribe is still uneducated and uncivilised, but they are harmless. The climate of Hainan is temperate, being fairly "warm" during the day and cool in the evening.

There are eight rivers, most of them navigable for small-sized junk, and the highest mountain there is called the Five Fingers Mountain, set right in the middle of Hainan. The island is rich in minerals. Hainan's chief products there are sugar cane, tobacco, peanuts, sweet potatoes, cotton, coconut, coffee and pineapples. The roads in Hainan are fairly good and the land is fertile.

Wild Game

So far as feathered game in concerned there is plenty, whilst wild boars and deer are to be found in the interior. No big game such as tigers, bears, etc., could be found.

Strange to relate, in the small country places in the interior, and in fact, all over Hainan and in the tea houses, much coffee is drunk and European cakes are consumed by the native. These habits are probably imported from Malaya, to which most of the Hainan people emigrate sooner or later.

The lecture proved very interesting to the large number of the members who attended.

H.K. UNIVERSITY LECTURE

Mr. G. White Talks On Technical Education

ITS HELP TO INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

At a meeting of the Teachers' Association held in the Hong Kong University yesterday, Mr. G. White, B.Sc., Principal of the Junior Technical School, gave a lecture on technical education and the important part it occupies in the industrial progress of the Colony.

"During the course of his speech Mr. White said that in the past few years Technical Education had advanced far beyond its original scope. He then proceeded to outline the general procedure at technical schools and the subjects embraced to-day in their curricula.

To-day's Short Story.

The Tobacco Jar

By B. O. BYASS

WHEN her husband returned from the office, walked into the sitting-room, sat down in his customary armchair and began to fill his pipe, Mary Wentworth thought that all was well with the world. Apart, of course, from the fact that he didn't speak.

"West Africans reacted," thought Mary, to whom Stocks and Shares were always remote and vaguely colonial. And so she continued with her knitting.

Soon the click of her needles began to get on her nerves. You didn't notice it when you were alone, but when about a tenth of the room was filled with a husband whom you hadn't seen for eight hours. . . .

Bang! The large round tobacco jar fell off the table on to the parquet floor. Mary Wentworth started and looked up.

"Careless," she said, "but not half so careless, my dear, as to forget to say good-evening to Mary."

When Mrs. Wentworth smiled she reminded people of elfin things, for she was small and neat and had wrinkles at the corners of her eyes. Clifford Wentworth neither swore nor made any attempt to retrieve the tobacco jar. But he was looking at Mary, or rather, through Mary. And it wasn't a pleasant look.

A dippant thought, which she instantly smothered, passed through her mind: "West Africans must surely have become South Africans."

You see, she was not in the least frightened—yet. Only a little puzzled and a little hurt. And her husband's might be a mood that wanted laughing off.

On the other hand—"Darling," she said, "are you feeling ill?" Clifford spoke for the first time. He said, very slowly and very clearly: "I am going to kill you."

Now that was a felling thing to say to a lady who was small and neat and who had wrinkles at the corners of her eyes—especially when she was knitting.

"I am going to kill you," Clifford continued in a level voice, "very soon. I haven't yet made up my mind how I shall do it. Painfully, I expect. Painful deaths amuse me." And then his voice changed abruptly. "I wanted you to know, I wanted you to know."

Mary Wentworth sat quite still. The embryo woollen garment drooped over her nerveless hands. The little wrinkles became big wrinkles as her eyes grew larger. She said, "Clifford, my darling!" Round-eyed, incredulous, not frightened—yet. But why didn't he light that pipe?

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "Mr. Magee's Sweet Tooth," by Jasper Power.

"Yes," the strange voice reassured itself, "yes, it's been settled for a long time. We are alone in this room. We are reputed to be essential to one another. That, of course, is pure bunkum. Briefly, you are in the way. Accidents—will—happen."

Mary's mouth opened to speak but no sound came. She wanted to comfort him, to ease the pain in his eyes, to humour him, knowing he must be raving mad. But his words and his look had paralysed her and she was frightened now.

"I said I was going to kill you," Clifford's voice seemed to come from further away. "In theory I am, in practice you are going to kill yourself. Yes, I have decided now, you shall shoot yourself with this silenced revolver, which I'm told belongs to you." He held the unlit pipe by its bowl and pointed it in the direction of her heart.

Suddenly all physical fear left Mary. Abject, heartrending pity took its place. You couldn't run away from a man who threatened to shoot you dead with a briar pipe—if you loved him, anyway. Because he had lost his wife there was every reason that you should find yours. No good having two mad people alone in the same house. And if you couldn't conquer the physical thing you hadn't an earthly with the—

"Don't touch that 'phone." It was the first time Clifford had raised his voice. Considering the suddenness of this and that she had merely stretched out to place her knitting on the small table beside her, and considering that the telephone was in the hall, Mary admits to some admiration of her own self-control. She also admits that Clifford's words gave her the idea which she eventually carried out.

Clifford's voice—the one she knew so well—broke in again: "I wanted you to know, I wanted you to know."

"Wanted me to know what, dear?" Silence. He didn't answer. He didn't seem to have heard. A moth flew round and round inside the shade of the standard lamp above his head.

And Mary said suddenly: "You sit quite still and rest, dear. You are overtired. I'm going into the dining-room to fetch you a drink."

She got up rather jerkily out of her chair, expecting at any moment to hear that terrible shout again. But though his eyes never appeared to wander from her direction he gave no sign that he objected to her going. Half way across the room she found it impossible to control the speed of her legs. By the time she reached the door she was almost running.

"Maypole 7878." Feverish dialling. She knew the number so well. Trevor Givan was her husband's partner. She was always raging up their office. Nice man, Trevor. Peculiar sometimes. Looked as if he was meant to have power. "Hullo, hullo." No answer, no answer. Of course, the office would be closed now. Clifford never left until the end of the day. What was Trevor's private number? Wardour 1625. WAR 1625. Nice man. Sure to help her if he was in. If he was in! She looked round wildly to see that she hadn't been followed.

EASTERN WITHOUT USUAL CUSTODIAN

KOWLOON JUNIORS MAKE CHANGES

Hickman Injured And Fuxman Retained

Hickman, who was injured last week against the Club Juniors, is not available for Kowloon juniors this week-end, and his position at left-back has been filled by Fuxman.

E. Humphreys, who played on the right-wing early in the season, will again be seen in his old position while Winch has been moved to inside-left. MacDonald will lead the forward line.

ENGINEERS MAKE MANY CHANGES

Beale To Lead Third Division Side

In an endeavour to check the number of setbacks recently received, the Engineers' Third Division eleven has undergone a number of changes this week for their fixture against the Police.

Strike returns at left-back in place of McGrath, who will take up the inside-right berth in place of Jones. Beale comes in at centre-forward, in place of Woods, who will probably move to inside-left and Clarke will take the outside-left position in place of Burnard.

The probable team is—Carley Bevil, Striker; Wells, Coleman, Jewell, Ferris, McGrath, Beale, Woods or Jones, and Clarke.

KOWLOON SENIORS UNCHANGED

Kowloon, who played brilliant football last Saturday to hold South China "B" to a draw at Carollie Hill, are making no changes in their team to meet the Fusiliers tomorrow at Kowloon.

Boyes, Everett and Willis; Sinclair, Blair and Barlow; Eastman, McKelvey, G. White, V. White and Knox.

The team is—Selleck; Slack, Dudley; Budden, Denham, Boyling; Callard, Hurst, Darby, Howlett, and Creagh.

ATHLETIC ARE EXPECTED TO BEAT S. CHINA

Pau Aids S. China South China "B" have been considerably strengthened between the sticks by Pau Ka-ping, whose return to the game is welcomed by all.

Yeung Shui-yick, former South China "A" right-winger, and Tsang King-ki, are likely to prove the most dangerous of the South China "B" forwards, but in Mak Shui-hon and Wong Shek-ping, the Athletics possess two backs equal to, if not better than, Lee Tin-sang and Lau Mau, the pride of South China "A" s defence.

The game should develop into one of the fastest encounters of the present season, with the odds lying with the Athletic team.

The teams are—Athletics: Sui Tin-lim; Wong Shek-ping, Mak Shui-hon; Ng Tak-wing, Tsui Ah-fai, Ho Chor-yin; Lee Hung-ching, Yeung Kan-po, Ho Kar-keung, Chan Chun-wo (Darkie Chan) and Fung King-yu.

South China "B": Pau Ka-ping; Chung Chi-ying, Yu Hing-yuen; Lee Kam, Lau Tak-po, Henry Young, Yeung Shui-yick, Lai Shui-wing (Tsang King-ki), Cheuk Shek-kam and Lee Shek-yau.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

"Cotton: The market is still nervous and moves were made quickly both ways in new crop months. Prices were weak on a thin demand. Trade was fixing prices and covering. Interest was centred in nearer options."

"Rubber: An easy tone was ruling all day, with prices closing at the day's low levels. Heavy Commission house selling caught many stop-loss orders. The Trade feels that the weakness of other markets is the principal factor, as London was steady. Dealers were buyers on the scale-down, while there was slight foreign buying."

"Sugar: The sugar market was firm. At the three cent basis there were moderate sales of March shipment of Porto Ricas, and at this basis. Futures were strong, while the price of refined remained unchanged."

Special: Sears Roebuck & Co. have declared a special dividend of 75 cents, with the record date as April 1.

"Flash: Brokers' loans have increased by $1,000,000."—Reuter.

Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Company's report on the opening of the markets:—

A higher opening was seen on Wall Street to-day, but the volume of trading was very light, lacking follow-through.

On the cotton market Europe was a cheap buyer, while there was a moderate domestic trade demand. Selling was light. The tone of the market was steady.

MALAYAN TRADE SOARS

Trade Highest For Three Years

Malayan trade soared almost to pre-slump levels in 1934, when the 1,000 million dollars mark of total trade was passed again for the first time in three years.

Trade statistics for the twelve months of 1934 have now been issued from the department of Statistics, and reveal that the total of trade for the year was 1,039 millions of dollars, compared with 764 millions of dollars in 1933. This represents an increase of over 25 per cent in the year, or 275 millions of dollars.

Imports totalled 471 millions compared with 362 millions in the previous year, and exports 568 millions as compared with 402 millions—which gives Malaya a favourable trade balance (that is, an excess of exports over imports) of nearly 100 millions. It was Malaya's best trading year since 1931.

MOSLEM MURDERS WIFE

Went To Work Without Her Veil

A Moslem peasant in Russian Turkistan murdered his wife because she went to work unveiled in a silk factory at Ash.

The High Court of Kirghizia decided that this murder was "directed against the policy of the party and the Government and against the new life." It therefore sentenced the peasant to death, and had him shot immediately.

The Communist president of a Kirghizian village has been expelled from the party for taking $100 commission on the sale of a young girl for 2000.

The Tobacco Jar

"Hullo, Oh, is that Wardour 1625? Is Mr. Givan in? Mrs. Wentworth. Thank you."

And, thank God, he was at home! She moved round to the other side of the telephone table so that she could watch the door of the sitting-room.

"Trevor? Oh, I'm so glad. Listen. What's the matter with Clifford?"

There was a perceptible pause before she heard Givan's reply.

"Clifford? Why do you ask?"

"Well, didn't you see him to-day? Wasn't he ill?"

"Not to my knowledge. He seemed perfectly well when I left him. How do you know he's ill?"

"How do I know! How do I know! Trevor, he's in the sitting-room now and he's—he's not at all well."

"But he can't—" another pause—"why don't you send for a doctor?"

"Oh, please come round first and see him and advise me. Do, Trevor. I'm alone, Alice's night out. Please, Trevor."

"Of course, Mary. Of course I will. Ten minutes."

Mary Wentworth said "thank you" to a dead wire.

Ten minutes! She couldn't go back into that room again. Not until Trevor came. Not so frightened, really. Just helpless. She would go through into the kitchen and mess about with the cold supper which Alice had prepared.

She moved silently along the passage into the kitchen. Cold soup. Cold chicken. Salad. Creme caramel. All there. All ready to eat. And the thought suddenly struck her: "My God! do mad people eat?"

Must keep her mind off the pitiable, tragic figure in the sitting-room. Better make a salad dressing. Trevor would know what to do about the other thing. Trevor was capable, though he had been rather vague on the telephone. What had he said? How do you know he's ill? Who should know if she didn't? Silly, that! Not like Trevor Givan. And then: But he can't—" Can't what? Can't be ill? Oh, Trevor, he is, he is!

The front door bell pealed. Mary ran—fast, this time.

Trevor came into the hall, a black soft hat in his hand. He spoke lightly.

"Well, what's all the big noise about?"

Then he saw Mary's face.

"Nothing seriously wrong, I hope? Where is he?"

Mary pointed. "In there," she said.

Did he pale? No, Trevor was strong, capable.

She led the way into the sitting-room, preparing her opening speech as she went. "Oh, Clifford dear, Trevor's just looked in. I'll get the drinks."

But the room was quite empty and the tobacco jar was still on the floor.

"Wait a minute," she said breathlessly, "he must have gone upstairs." She thought Trevor's mouth was going to smile.

He did smile when she came down again, having searched every room of the small house.

"He's gone," she said, "but not out of the front door."

"I think you'd better go to bed," said Trevor. "Clifford's probably called at his club on the way home."

"But, Trevor, he was sitting in that chair. He spoke to me. He knocked that tobacco jar over."

"My dear Mary, you dozed off and you've been dreaming."

Mary turned to him quickly. "Answer me this, Trevor. When I first told you on the phone that he was ill, what did you say?"

"Lord! I can't remember."

"What did you start to say? Don't you remember? You said: 'He can't—' and then you stopped."

"I honestly don't know. I was rather taken aback."

"You're hiding something, Trevor, aren't you? Aren't you? You were going to say 'he can't be ill! Why? How did you know he couldn't be ill? When did you see him last?'"

"Oh, at about five-thirty. I explained that he appeared to be quite fit then."

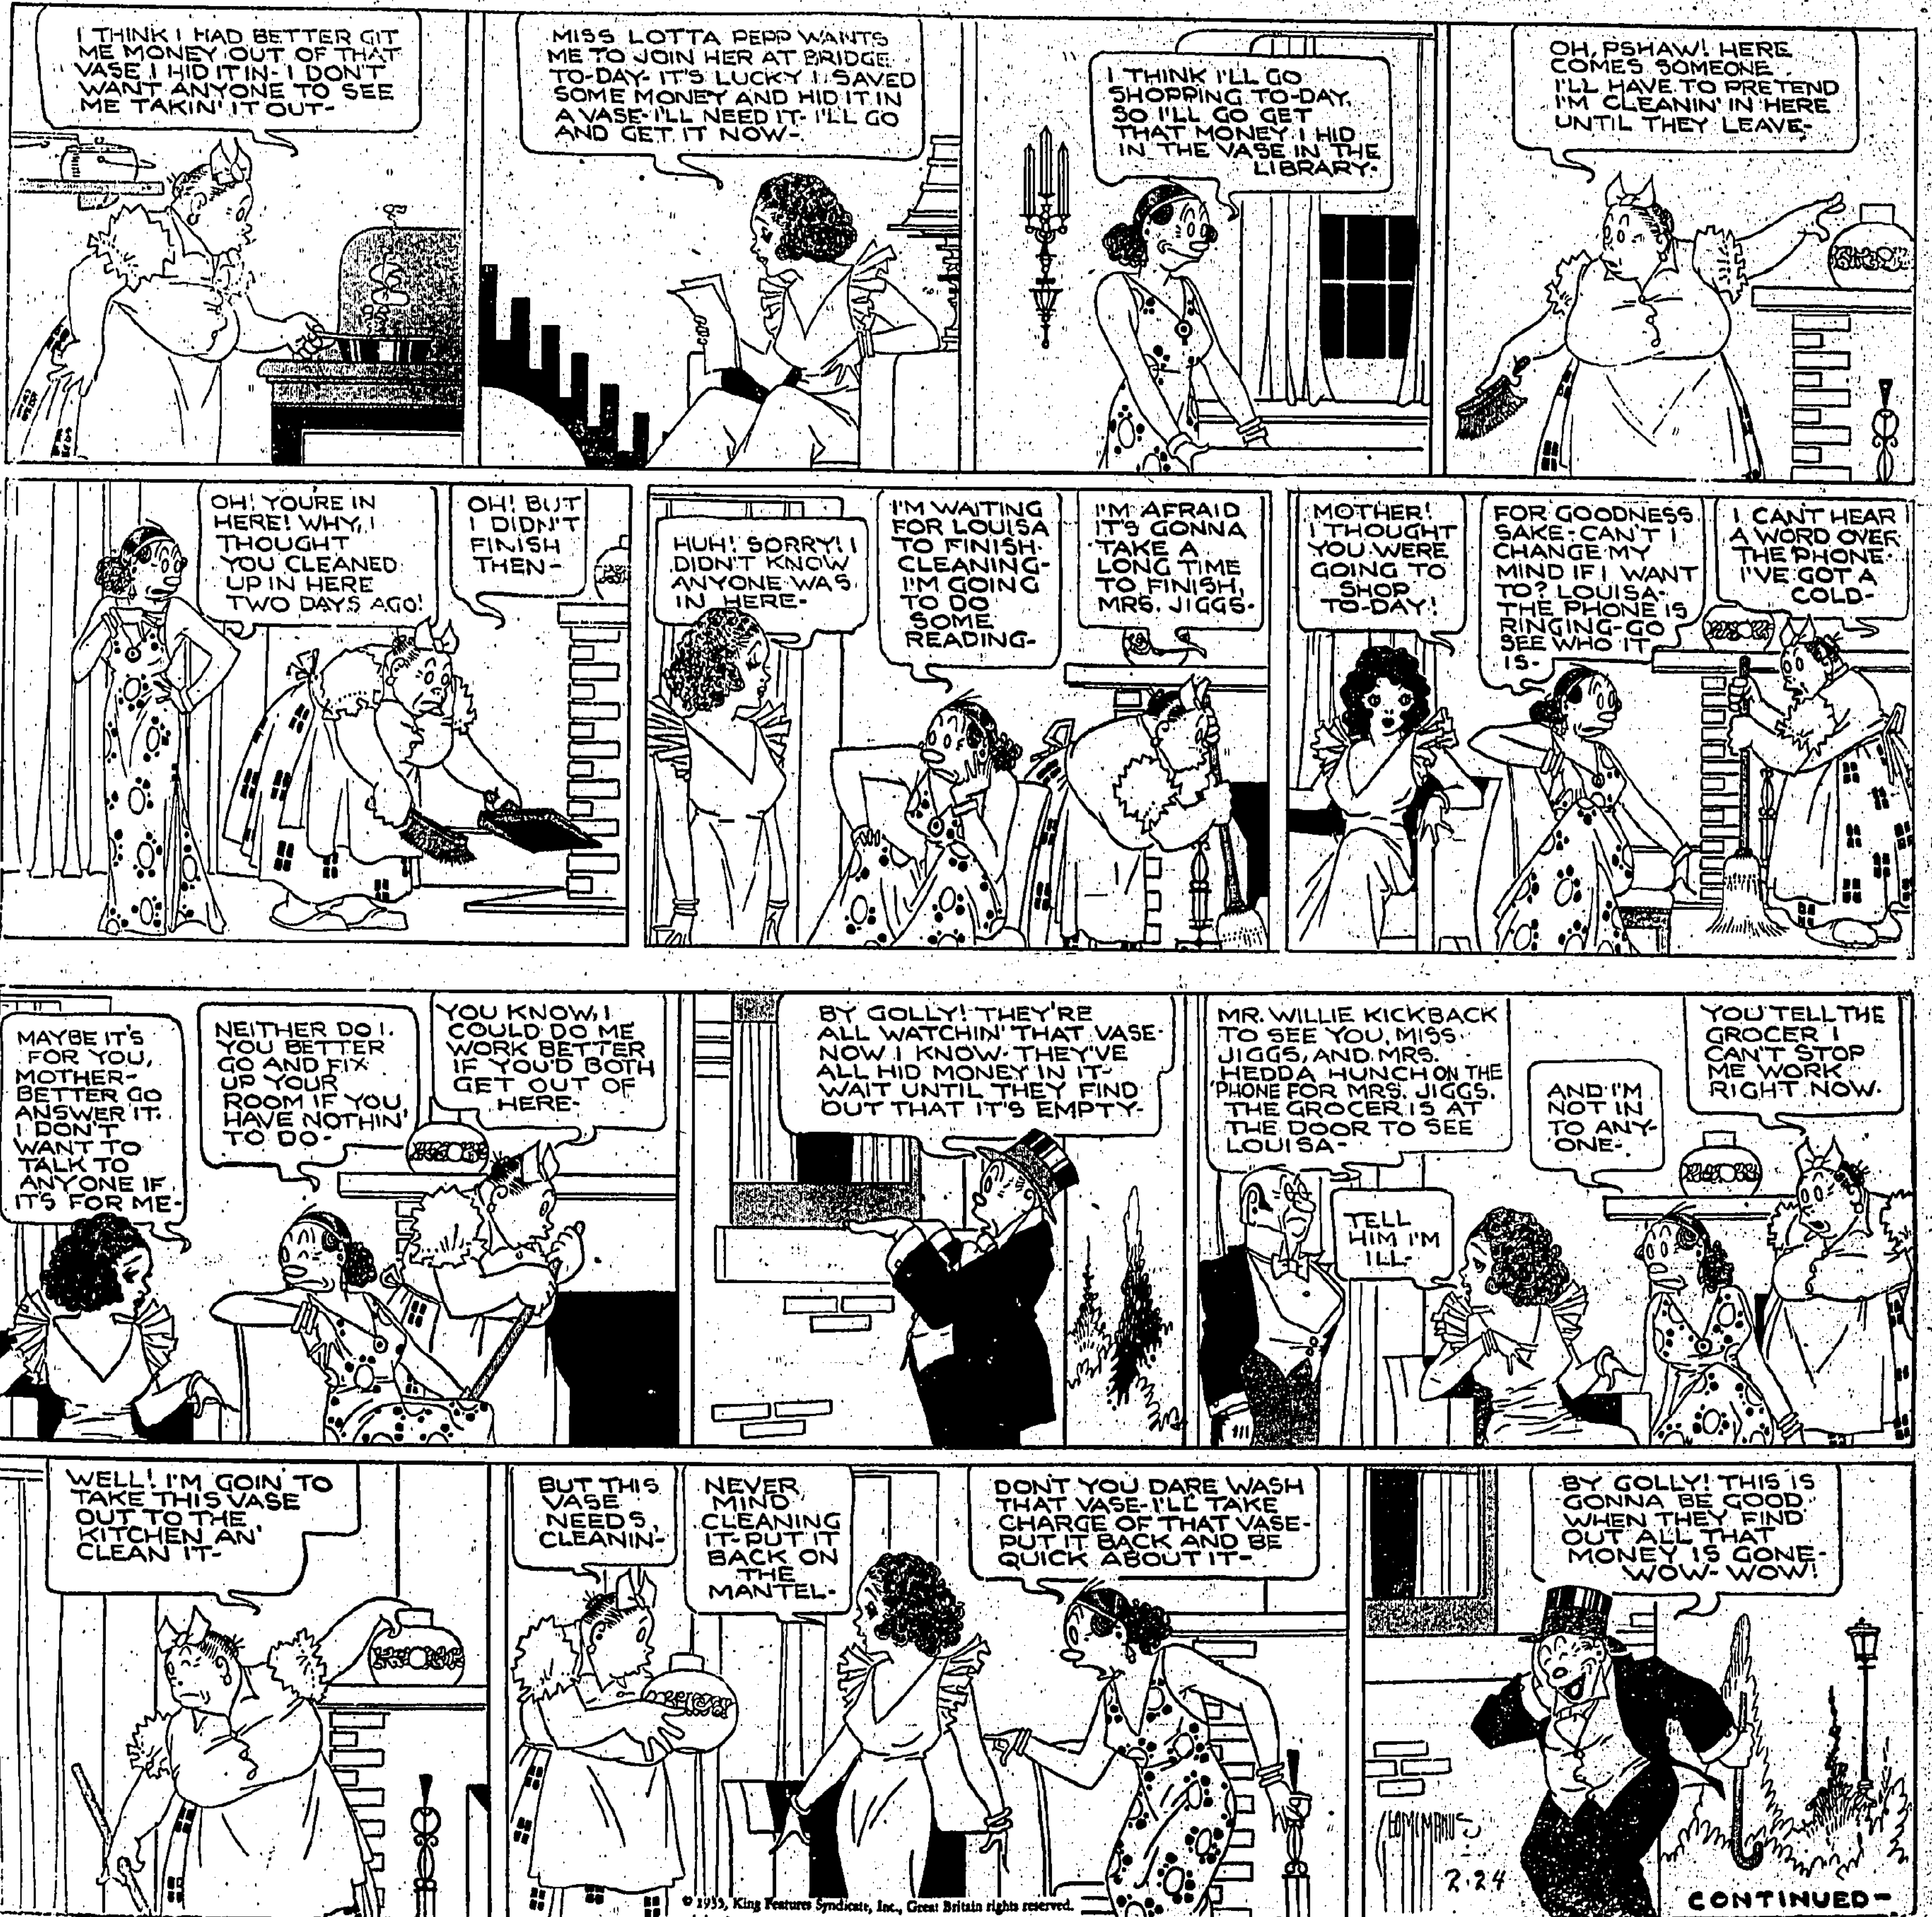

"What was he doing?"

"Writing at his desk, as far as I remember."

"And then, Trevor, you asked me how I knew he was ill. Are you mad, too? Are we all mad? Why did you ask how I knew?"

The Tobacco Jar

"Really, Mary, I don't know. I think I was—what's the matter?" Mary was staring at him intently. The one tear had run its full course. She was dry-eyed now. "I think," she said, "you have done all you can for me. Will you go now, please?" "But do you think you ought—" Trevor began. "Will you go now, please?" The sound of the front door closing stirred Mary into action. One glance at the empty chair; upstairs quickly; hat; coat; downstairs; taxi. All done in a few minutes. Action! Action!

The office building was closed. She rang the bell. The night porter looked surprised. "I don't think there be anyone in the place," he said. "Oh, yes." He took Mary up in the lift. First floor, second, third. Here it was. GIVAN & WENTWORTH, BROKERS. A light shone behind a glass door, marked "Private." "I'm Mrs. Wentworth, and I think my husband is still in his office."

The porter knocked. No answer. No movement. He knocked again. "There's nobody there," said the porter. "Please let me in," said Mary. "Funny, the light bein' on," said the porter, and opened the door for her.

Clifford Wentworth sat at his desk, his body slumped forward, his head resting on his left wrist, his right hand hanging loosely at his side, pointing to the revolver which lay on the floor. "E's asleep," said the porter. "He's dead," said Mary. The porter saw the revolver. "Shot 'isself," he said. "Oh, no," said Mary. She was quite calm. She walked over to the desk and put a hand on her husband's head, caressing it. No tears came. The porter shuffled about behind her awkwardly. "I'll have to give the police a ring," he said. "Yes," said Mary. While they were waiting the inspector's arrival Mary took in all the details of the room—the mahogany clock on the mantel-piece, the dusty book-shelves, the three leather chairs and, finally, the desk covered with green baize, over which a dark stain was spreading, spreading towards a pipe and a pale blue china tobacco jar which had a Cambridge crest on it.

With her hand still on Clifford's head she jerked her gaze away to the blotting pad which was directly beneath her. A pencil lay beside it. There were pencil scrawls in one corner of it, vague, uneven. She bent closer to examine them. Her husband's writing, of course. He always jotted down notes on other people's conversations. What was this? "Bunkum." "In the way." "Accidents." Other people's conversations! And then underneath, more clearly, "Wanted you to know."

And Mary knew. Forty minutes ago she had heard these words from his own mouth, sitting there in his chair under the lamp. Only the last sentence had been in his own

TALKIE TALKS

"Gambling"

George M. Cohan made one previous film, "The Phantom President" with Claudette Colbert, but it was not a suitable vehicle for this famous man known as the "First actor" in America. Now in "Gambling" we have him in one of his Broadway successes. He acts with poise and sympathy and the play holds interest.

The supporting cast (with the exception of Wynne Gibson and Dorothy Burgess) is filled with names from the original stage version. George M. Cohan, famous playwright, dancer, singer, actor, and song writer (who will ever forget "Over There" during the War?) and the idol of Broadway for more years than I can remember; has recently finished a highly successful season in Eugene O'Neill's play "Oh voice. The rest—other people's conversation. Yes it was Trevor Givan's voice that had frightened her. She knew. She had known when she asked him to go out of the house.

Trevor Givan had stood there with her husband's Service revolver, which he always kept in the office, and had killed him with it and set the stage for suicide. Motive? What did motives matter? They didn't bring the dead back to life. But no tears—yet. Work to be done. The police must be made to see that it wasn't suicide. Could an inspector ever believe that a body could, so to speak, walk out of a body and come to tell her what was happening because it "wanted her to know so badly?"

The inspector couldn't and didn't. "They'll bring in suicide," he said. "No evidence of anyone having been with him at the time of his death. Fingerprints on the gun belong to your husband. We'll have to question Mr. Givan, of course, but there's no shred of evidence against him. I'm afraid, madam, I'll have to ask you for a few details of Mr. Wentworth's life."

Details! God! Why couldn't the man see?

And then Mary saw. She saw the little mark in the base of the tobacco jar—white against the blue—as if somebody had chipped a piece out with a hammer. But she knew it had fallen on the floor. She knew because she had seen it.

A sudden faintness assailed her. The inspector appeared to be going away into the distance, going before she could tell him that the murderer had picked up and replaced the tobacco jar.

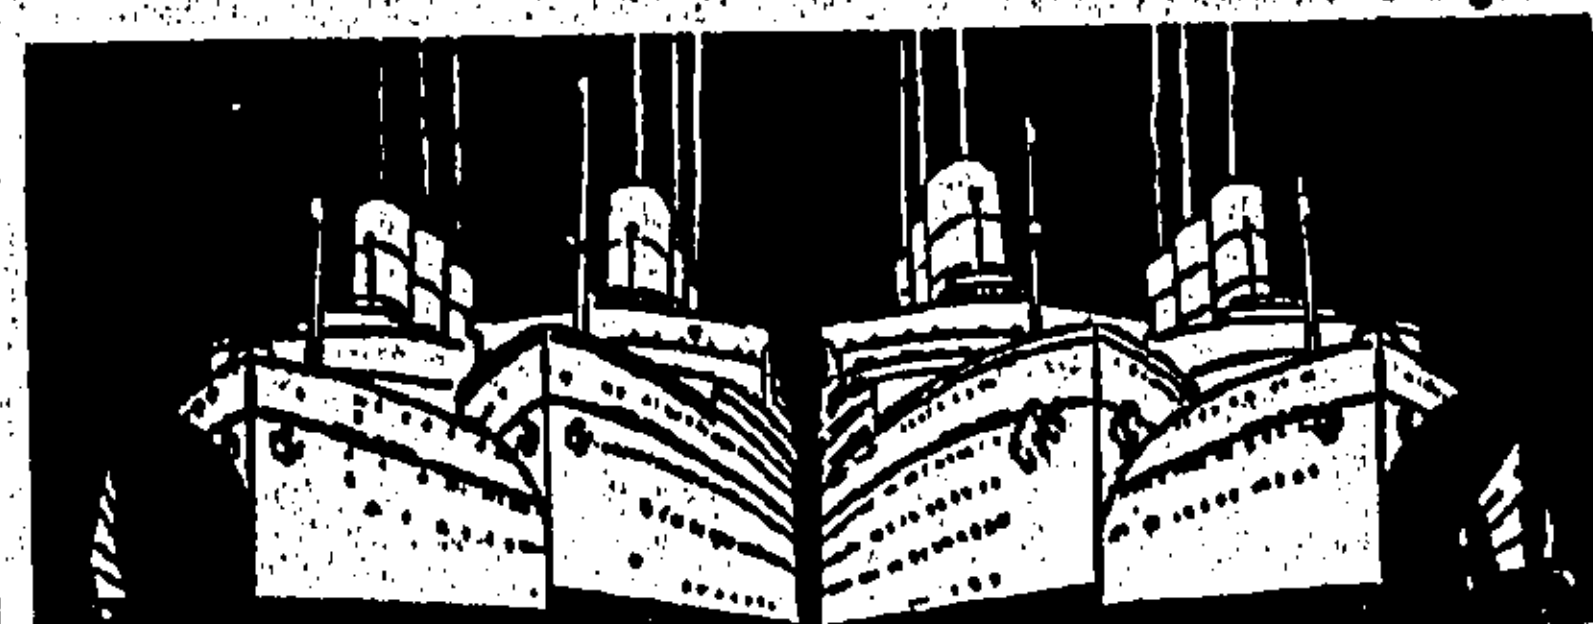

"Please"—she thought she was screaming—"please... that tobacco jar... it oughtn't to be there... it ought to be on the floor... it knocked it over before he was killed... finger marks," Mary faintly.

They found the little blue chip on the carpet by the desk and the finger-prints of Mr. Givan on the jar. They also found a neat little motive tucked away among Mr. Givan's record of Stock Exchange transactions.

Scotland Yard do these things quickly when they see.

REORGANISING U.S. SHIPPING

Big State Subsidy Plans

VESSELS FOR USE IN CASE OF WAR

Plans are under consideration for a drastic reorganisation of the U.S. mercantile marine. The main feature of the proposals is the construction of new vessels in such a manner that they could quickly be converted into troopships or aeroplane carriers in the event of war.

A subsidy from the Government, which it is suggested might be in the neighbourhood of $5,000,000, is also proposed.

It is understood that the Navy Department has approved proposals for the construction of new cabin liners, cargo boats, cold-storage vessels and tankers, subject to the condition that the plans are first approved by Navy officials.

Legislation is likely to be sought either for direct construction grants, representing the difference between building costs in America and abroad, or for operating subsidies.

Leviathan Problem
One of the outstanding problems of the American mercantile marine in relation to foreign competition is what to do with the out-of-date Leviathan, which is lying idle in New York Harbour. The United States Lines, who own the vessel, are under contract to make seven Atlantic return voyages in each of the next two years.

The company has now suggested that it should be allowed to substitute a new cabin liner similar to the fast Manhattan and Washington for the Leviathan, and to hand the latter over to the Navy department to be kept in condition in case it is needed for transport purposes in the event of war.

Besides these projects to raise the merchant fleet nearer the level of foreign rivals, the Navy Department is seeking authorisation to spend $30,000,000 in the next two years on the replacement of more than 100 naval auxiliary vessels, such as tenders, tugs, and tankers.

ROMANTIC TALE OF PIRATE CAPTIVES

Sick Girl Nursed By Fellow-Prisoner

ENGAGEMENT RESULTS

How a fisherman's young daughter of Tungting and a farmer of Chitung fell in love with each other when they were both prisoners in the fair of a gang of pirates operating in the mouth of the Yangtze River is related by the Eastern Times.

According to the report, the fisherman's daughter, Miss Tsing Lin-ching, was taken prisoner by pirates on a junk last autumn. Soon after, she became seriously ill and was left unattended in a dirty hut by her captors. Chang Yung-feng, a Chitung farmer, who was also a captive of the marauders, nursed the sick girl until her condition considerably improved.

By this time, government forces had come to their assistance and they managed to escape to Nantunghow last Thursday where they became engaged.

FIREMEN IMPEDED

Hose Turned On Crowd In Melbourne

Firemen turned a hose on spectators who were hampering their efforts to control a fire which caused damage estimated at £2500 in the factory of the Weaving Elastic Manufacturing Company, Abbotford.

The fire broke out about 6 p.m. Hundreds of spoils of silk and cotton, which were standing in racks in weaving and spinning machines, were burnt.

At the worst period of the fire, complaints were made by the firemen that the spectators, including hundreds of children, were hampering their work.

They had gathered in the narrow streets and the firemen had to push them aside to move the hoses. When the hose was turned on the crowd, they scattered instantly.

The Flemington police investigated an attack made on Mrs. Simon Rivkin, Bronx beauty shop proprietress, who was to have testified for the prosecution that Mrs. Anna Hauptmann frequently gave her $10 and $20 bills in payment for 50c and 75c treatments in her beauty shop.

THE BURIAL PLACE OF KEATS

Menaced By Rome Plans

TRAFFIC CONDITIONS RESPONSIBLE

Uncertainty surrounds the fate of the English cemetery at Rome in which Keats is buried and Shelley's ashes lie. A town-planning scheme which Signor Mussolini has decided to carry out before the end of the Fascist year next October includes the enlargement of the square in front of St. Paul's Gate.

This may entail cutting off part of the old cemetery, which is no longer used. Shelley's ashes, however, are in the new cemetery adjoining.

Joseph Severn, the painter, was buried next to Keats; Trelawny lies near Shelley's tomb. Many other distinguished English men and women are buried there.

Modern traffic conditions have created the present problem. The square by the old gateway is so inadequate to the needs of the cars going to and from Ostia, Rome's new seaside resort, that more accidents happen there than in any other part of the city.

Signor Mussolini, as directed the new Governor of Rome, Signor Bottai, to leave the cemetery as it is if he can possibly do so.

BRAVEST DEED OF THE YEAR

Stanhope Gold Medal For Naval Officer

SAVED MAN IN CHOPPY SEA

The Stanhope Gold Medal for "the bravest deed of the year" was awarded last month at the annual Court of the Royal Humane Society at Water-gate House, Adelphi, W.C., to Lieutenant Hugh N. A. Richardson, in respect of an incident in Lamlash Harbour, Isle of Arran, Scotland, last year.

H.M.S. Wolfhound was at anchor in the harbour when, in the early morning, an ordinary seaman fell overboard and was swept astern in the darkness. The weather was cold, with strong south-westerly squalls, causing a choppy sea. Two lifebuoys were thrown at once, but they failed to reach the man.

Lieutenant Richardson threw off his coat and seaboots and dived clothed into the sea and swam to the man, whom he tried to tow to the nearest lifebuoy.

Rescuer Swept Away
Unable to do so, he swam to the buoy, and bringing it back to the seaman, placed it under his shoulders.

By this time a boat was lowered, and with the aid of a searchlight, the seaman was picked up.

While getting the man into the boat, Lieutenant Richardson lost hold of the lifebuoy and was himself swept away in the darkness. It was ten minutes later when he was found in an exhausted condition, half-a-mile away from the ship.

The wind was so strong that the boat could not make any headway, and drifted to a lee shore, where it was beached, Lieutenant Richardson and the crew wading ashore.

Moving Mainmast Of Majestic

SLINGING "BLUE BIRD" ON BOARD SHIP

The mainmast of the Cunard White Star liner Majestic was lifted out of the ship by the Southern Railway Company's 150-ton floating crane at Southampton last month.

The mast, one piece of steel, is 240ft. in length, and weighs 18 tons. Its heel extended 45ft. into the ship from the upper deck, or three decks down.

It was drawn almost perpendicularly from its setting and was then pulled into a horizontal position and lowered on to the pontoon of the crane. The mast is to undergo examination and repair.

SET GUN TO GUARD HER WEALTH

Son Touches Trap And Is Killed

Frau Kuerzinger, a widow, of Ingolstadt, in Bavaria, made sure that anyone trying to steal her money would get a warm reception.

She hid the sack of notes in the barn of her farm and set a gun to go off as soon as the sack was touched.

Soon after she had set the trap the widow heard the gun go off.

She ran to the barn and found her thirteen-year-old son dying. He had touched the sack by accident.

NAVY ESTIMATES PASSED

tic rise in expenditure during 1935 on the new construction involved by the programmes authorised in previous years and constituting part of the normal replacement policy allowed by the terms of the London Naval Treaty of 1930 which is still in force.

The number of ships in the British Navy had been already drastically reduced, and, in view of imperial responsibilities, the Government could not agree to a further numerical reduction. At the same time they were anxious to join in an international agreement for the reduction of the sizes within the categories. In particular, they would like to see the tonnage of battleships fixed at 25,000, with 12 inch guns, and cruisers restricted to 7,000 tons, with 6 inch guns.

Failing the total abolition of submarines, which they favoured, they would like to maintain the qualitative limitations of the London Treaty, and drastically reduce the maximum permissible submarine tonnage.

These proposals for a qualitative limitation would be of an enormous advantage to the world because they would preserve the relative strength of the different countries at a greatly reduced cost, he concluded. — British Wireless Service.

According to the same dispatches, General Ho Chien, military head of Hunan, and General Li Chung-jen, head of the Kwangsi army, also flew to Kweichow yesterday. It is even said that Canton will be represented by a high military official. The provincial troops of these three provinces will join in the drive against the Red insurgents.

Although earlier reports stated that the Reds had been driven out of Tsunyi, Northern Kweichow, several thousand remnants are still hiding in the mountainous regions in the vicinity. These were spotted by Nanking reconnoitring planes from Chungking.

two rifles in Ping-chang while pursuing the remnants. A regiment of the First Division, which was sent to search for Red outlaws, wiped out a band of some 200 bandits in New-ling. In the battle more than 20 of them were killed, over 10 captured, and a machine gun and about 20 rifles taken. On the same day, the troops of the Second Division seized many weapons in Yih-shui, Shek-pai, and Chin-chie. These were reported yesterday by General Yu Han-mow, Commander of the Kwangtung First Army Corps.

Another report which also came to hand yesterday from Colonel Li Chin, Commander of the First Regiment of the First Division, states that his troops have dispersed the remnant bandits attached to the bogus First and Second South Kiang Army in Chin-sha, Lo-hung, Shek-leu, and Yih-por-hung. More than 200 of them including a bogus commanding officer were killed, over 700 captured, and about 350 rifles taken in the battles staged against them during the past few days.—Central Press.

THE TEST MATCH

Headley was now well set and scoring freely all round the wicket in characteristic manner, and Sealey was given all the confidence he needed. At the close of play the pair were together after adding 143 for the third wicket.

Headley has hit 16 boundaries in one of his steadiest innings of the season, scoring with confidence all round the wicket.

One of the features of the day's play was the brilliant fielding of the tourists, who were set an admirable example by their skipper, Hammond, and Hendren.

LORD PRIVY SEAL'S MOSCOW VISIT

Stay Of Four Days To Start On March 28

London, To-day.

Arrangements have now been completed for the visit of the Lord Privy Seal, Mr. Anthony Eden, to Moscow. At the conclusion of the talks, which Sir John Simon and he will have with Herr Hitler and other German Ministers, Mr. Eden will leave Berlin by the train on the night of March 26 and arrive in Moscow on the morning of the 28th.

During his stay of four days he will have the opportunity to discuss with M. Stalin, M. Litvinov, and other prominent members of the Russian administration the general European situation in the light of the Anglo-French communique of February 8.

Mr. Eden will leave Moscow on the night of the 31st and proceed to Warsaw. The definite programme for his Polish visit has not yet been fixed, but it is expected that Mr. Eden will remain about two days for conversations with members of the Polish Government.—British Wireless Service.

Three of the deceased were married women.

DROUGHT-RESISTANT GRASS

Search Conducted In Gobi Desert

Dr. Nicholas Roerich, eminent Russian archaeologist and recognized authority on Central Asia, and his son, George Roerich who have been spending some time in Peking, expect left about March 15 for the Gobi desert in Mongolia.

There they will endeavour to find a type of drought-resistant grass suitable for transplanting in the United States, to be used in rebuilding its ravaged western range lands.

Sent out by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. Roerich heads the expedition and with his son, George, as an assistant, plans to remain in Mongolia through the autumn, supervising the research.
